Discussion Policy Set
For Placement Service

The University Council determined at its meeting October 15, that prospective employers making use of the University Placement Service will be required to engage in public discussion of their institutional policies when petitioned by students and faculty.

The text of the policy is:
I. The University Placement Service brings together prospective employees and employers at a location convenient to both, and it provides counseling service to a substantial number of people in the University community. It is recommended that the Placement Service be retained.

II. Appropriate facilities of the University shall be made available to the broadest possible spectrum of employers which may be of interest to students with respect to their future careers. Permission granted an organization to use University facilities for recruitment does not imply endorsement by the University.

Betts Will Handle
External Affairs

Francis M. Betts III has been named Assistant to the President for External Affairs by Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, President.

Mr. Betts, who had been Director of Planning and Design since November, 1966, will assist in “fulfilling the increasing responsibilities of the Pennsylvania presidency in external relationships involving the University with society’s current and emerging problems,” Dr. Harnwell said.

Succeeding Mr. Betts as Director of Planning and Design is Arthur R. Freedman, who will continue to serve as Director of the student housing program which he was named to head in 1967. In that capacity, he has been responsible for planning, programming, budgeting and scheduling of the $36,600,000 housing project to provide residence and related facilities for over 5,000 students by mid-1971.

Council to Meet on War Issues,
Flags Return to Full-Staff

Flags at the University of Pennsylvania which were taken down and placed in storage on October 20, were raised again to full-staff October 24, following an announcement by President Harnwell.

Dr. Harnwell said in part “The reason for the original removal—to prevent possible controversy surrounding the flag—was quite clearly misunderstood outside of the University and the cause of deep division inside the institution. Discussions within the campus community have now progressed to a stage at which the variance from normal flying of the flag is no longer felt necessary to prevent its possible misuse.

Among the developments which have encouraged this return to custom is an effort among a group of students, together with members of the faculty in fine arts, to establish some appropriate memorial symbolizing a commitment to peace and a feeling of sorrow at the tragic loss of life in Vietnam, including the deaths of University alumni. I believe that the real issue, namely a proposal that the University as an institution condemn the Vietnam war, is now sufficiently understood on the campus to assure its reasoned discussion by the faculty members, students and administrative officers who constitute the University Council, which will meet October 30.”

The resolutions to be presented to the special meeting of the University Council read as follows.

Resolutions to be presented by those who requested the Special Meeting

I. Be it resolved that the University Council supports the following resolution passed by the University of Pennsylvania community in Assembly on October 15th and at a plenary session of the Community of Students: That all flags of the University of Pennsylvania shall be lowered to half-mast on October 15th in order to symbolize our commitment to peace and to the principle of self-determination of peoples, as well as out of deep sorrow over the deaths in the Vietnamese war of millions of Vietnamese and tens of thousands of Americans, including alumni of this University. They shall remain there until a similar mass convocation of students and faculty asks that they be raised.

II. Whereas student disorders and unrest have caused agony on many of the campuses of our nation, and Whereas these disorders have been in large measure stimulated by our national priorities which rank the war in Vietnam over the problems of our cities, place militarism ahead of constructive social change, and Whereas the fashioning of instruments of death over the preservation and betterment of human life, and Whereas it is not a “tiny minority” of our students but a substantial portion of the entire University community, faculty and students, who are deeply offended by these same policies, and Whereas the depth and intensity of these problems strikes with particular force at the vitality of an educational institution because the lives of our students are involved.

Nixon Is Sent Resolutions
From Special Assembly

Provost Goddard has transmitted to President Richard M. Nixon and three members of the Cabinet the actions taken by the October 15 University Assembly.

Dr. Goddard stated September 26, in calling the Assembly that he would convey to the appropriate federal officials the sense of the actions taken by the Assembly. Serving as co-chairmen of the Assembly, which was attended by over 2,600 faculty, staff and students, were Dr.
Ford Foundation Grant Awarded in Education

The Ford Foundation has awarded a $58,000 grant to the Graduate School of Education to plan a new program in educational administration for the 1970s.

Dr. Neal Gross, dean of the School, said a newly-named task force will design a program to produce a new breed of educational administrators equipped to offer "dynamic leadership to urban education."

Dr. Gross hopes the new program will involve faculties and departments of other schools as well as personnel in school districts and community leaders.

Among the weaknesses he sees in present programs is undue emphasis on "housekeeping" at the expense of attention to goal-setting; innovation; influencing staff performance, tone and morale; and the constructive involvement of parents and students in school affairs.

The Dean also points out that "most training programs have given little attention to the fact that critical education decisions are generally made in small group settings, that they involve the power systems of the community, and that they are frequently characterized by emotionalism and conflict."

Training in human relations skills and involvement in educational innovative efforts will probably be part of the new design, Dean Gross added, and the task force will also be asked to explore the possible contribution of trainee participation in community action programs.

New Professorship Set In Financial Management

Establishment of The Howard Butcher III, Professorship of Financial Management was announced at a meeting of the Trustees, October 9.

This distinguished professorship in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce was established in honor of Howard Butcher III, alumnus and Trustee of the University, by his friends and business associates.

John M. Seabrook, chairman of International Utilities Corporation, said his company and Butcher and Sherrerd, a Philadelphia investment firm, were endowing the chair.

William L. Day, chairman of the Trustees, said, "It means a great deal to Pennsylvania to have the benefit of a newly endowed chair in a field so important to the mission of the Wharton School. But it means even more to have this chair carry the name of Howard Butcher III."

Reorganization Planned In Morgan State Project

Reorganization of the University of Pennsylvania-Morgan State College Cooperative Project now calls for six faculty subcommittees on each campus.

Newly named as subcommittee chairman on the Pennsylvania campus are:

Dr. William M. Jr. Gaylord, professor of English at the American Quarterly.

Admissions—Dr. George A. Schlekat, dean of admissions and financial aid.

Financial Planning—Dr. Donald Murray, assistant to the president for federal relations.

Curricular Development—Dr. Mary E. Coleman, coordinator of the elementary education department.

Cultural Exchange—Dr. John McCoubrey, chairman and professor of the history of art.

Student Relations—Dr. Paul L. Niebanck, chairman and associate professor of city planning.

Dr. Samuel Z. Klausner, associate professor of Sociology and director of the Center for Research on the Acts of Man, continues as Pennsylvania's co-chairman of the joint Faculty Advisory Committee, and Dr. Eric Kafka continues as the campus Coordinator of the Project. Each has a counterpart at Morgan State in Baltimore, where the Coordinator is Dr. Willie T. Howard and the faculty co-chairman is Dr. Frank DeCosta, professor of education.

Overall co-directors of the Morgan-Pennsylvania project are Dr. David R. Goddard, provost of the University, and Dr. Martin Jenkins, president of Morgan State College.

The $40,000 grant is now entering its fifth year, under a renewed grant of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Faculty members who wish to propose cooperative programs may call Dr. Kafka at 8791 and contact the appropriate subcommittee chairman.

Physicist Will Deliver Second Leon Lecture

Dr. John A. Wheeler, who is Joseph Henry Professor of Physics at Princeton University, will give the second in this fall's series of Leon Lectures at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 11, on "Man's Place in Cosmology" in the Graduate School of Fine Arts Auditorium.

Dr. Wheeler is a winner of the Enrico Fermi Award from the Atomic Energy Commission and a former president of the American Physical Society.

Authors Jack Conroy and Harvey Swados spoke on "The Literary Underworld of the Thirties" in a symposium presented in the Leon Lecture Series on October 16. Sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences, it was the first Leon Lecture event of the season.
Dental Teaching and Research Building Is Dedicated

The School of Dental Medicine dedicated its new $4.2 million teaching and research building, October 9.

The new building was named the Leon Levy Oral Health Science Building in honor of Dr. Levy, a 1915 graduate of the Dental School. It is located at 40th and Locust Sts.

Participating in the program were Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, University president; Dr. Lester Burket, dean of the School of Dental Medicine; Dr. Levy; James D. Logan, executive director of the General State Authority, and University chaplain, Rev. Mr. Stanley E. Johnson.

Alumni, University trustees, faculty and friends of the Dental School attended the ceremony.

At conclusion of the ceremony, a plaque bearing the names of the donors was unveiled in the lobby. The plaque reads:

"Dr. Levy and other alumni, friends and organizations, the Avalon Foundation, General State Authority of Pennsylvania, Samuel Paley Foundation and U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare."

A resolution of the Trustees in honor of Dr. Levy follows:

Whereas Dr. Leon Levy has made numerous generous contributions over the years to the achievement of the University's educational goals, and Whereas Dr. Levy has shown particular concern for the future of the School of Dental Medicine and maintenance of its high standards in instruction and research, now therefore be it

RESOLVED that, in recognition of his thoughtful contributions and generous planning in behalf of the University, the new teaching and research building of the School of Dental Medicine be named the Leon Levy Oral Health Sciences Building; and be it further

RESOLVED that the Trustees hereby extend their grateful appreciation to Dr. Levy.

Dr. Levy, a frequent benefactor of the Dental School, is a director of the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. and the Atlantic City Racing Association. He is chairman of the board of the Delaware Terminal and Warehouse Co., and formerly was president of Philadelphia radio station WCAU.

A previous gift from Dr. Levy enabled the Dental School to purchase and install a closed-circuit television system. The Leon Levy Foundation, which was established by Dr. Levy, assisted with the construction of a new dental library, also named for Dr. Levy.

Designed by the Philadelphia architectural firm of Francis, Cauffman, Wilkinson and Pepper, the Levy Building includes teaching laboratories, conference rooms, a lecture hall, administrative offices, student research laboratories and offices for research scientists, service laboratories, and animal quarters.

The building is specifically adapted to the needs and convenience of research scientists. Several new design and construction features were incorporated to give flexibility in the arrangement of laboratory space, and an individual airflow and exhaust system in each prevents cross contamination of airborne materials from one laboratory to another.

Each of the four laboratory floors has only one interior supporting wall. All other walls can be easily removed for rearrangement of laboratory space in keeping with demands of research projects.

Plumbing and wiring are supplied to the laboratories independently of the partitions. Six-foot high interfloors, built above the permanent ceilings, permit servicing of the ductwork, piping and wiring without disturbing spaces above or below.

From its exterior, the brick on steel building appears higher than its six stories because of the interfloors. When the University completes the extension of Locust Walk from 37th to 40th St., the Levy Building will serve as visual focus for the mall.

The building was also designed with future expansion in mind, including possible additions on the east and west sides, and the eventual creation of a landscaped quadrangle on the south side where a smaller building now stands.

ultimately and directly threatened by them, therefore be it resolved that the University Council

1. condemns the continuing American military involvement in Vietnam and calls for the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from that country and

2. demands a reversal of national priorities away from militarism in all of its guises and toward social reform in this nation.

Amending resolution to be presented by Mark B. Cohen (member of Council; Col ’70)

Having passed this resolution, we wish to note that this is the first time the University Council has spoken out on a political issue. We speak out only because of the vast and tangible importance the Vietnam conflict has for every student. We speak out to show the President, Vice President, Cabinet members, Congressmen, Senators, and leaders of all American political parties the great depth of our feeling against current policies in Vietnam.

However, having a great commitment to academic freedom, we wish to make clear our intention that no member of the University Community—no student or University employee—who disagrees with this resolution shall be penalized as a result, in any way, including, but not limited to, loss of freedom of speech, loss of advancement based on one’s merits, and loss of research grants. Nor shall one’s position on Vietnam be used to determine one’s fitness for University employment, or one’s qualifications for admittance as a student.

We believe it is the duty of all patriots to state their views on the war to the greatest of their ability and we vigorously oppose any attempts to label expressions of thought on this issue as dangerous or un-American.

Resolution to be presented by Dr. Charles C. Price (Benjamin Franklin Professor of Chemistry)

While recognizing the need to be sensitive to the moral concerns of large numbers of University members and of finding appropriate ways to express these concerns, the Council resolves that flying the United States flag at half-staff is not appropriate as a symbol of the political or moral views of University members.

Resolution to be presented on behalf of the Steering Committee

Resolved, that a resolution concerning United States military involvement in Vietnam or stating national priorities is not a matter properly to be acted upon by the University Council as an official organ of the University, and the Council therefore declines to consider the merits of such a resolution for adoption or rejection.

During the afternoon of October 20, flags on the campus had been taken down and stored as directed by John A. Russell, Jr., Vice-Provost for Student Affairs, acting on behalf of President Harnwell and Provost Goddard who were in New York City to attend a meeting of the Association of American Universities.

Russell’s action was taken on his judgment of a conversation with students who had protested to him that flags were being flown at full-staff, rather than half-staff, in opposition to the resolutions passed by the October 15 University Assembly and the October 7 plenary meeting of the Community of Students.

On October 13, President Harnwell had stated that flags at the University would be flown at half-staff on October 15 “in accordance with the sentiments of a large segment of the broad community that constitutes the University, to recognize both the personal tragedies and deaths suffered by members of the University and its alumni as a result of the national military involvement in Vietnam, and also to serve as an expression of deep sorrow on the part of this community over the diminution of our common human fellowship as a result of all who have died there.” The flags had been returned to full-staff on October 16.

The students who protested to Mr. Russell began a vigil in College Hall on the afternoon of October 20 to read the entire list of the some 40,000 American war dead in Vietnam. The points of agreement between Mr. Russell and the students were made in the presence of members of the Committee on Open Expression and were as follows:

- Vigil participants may remain on the first floor of College Hall on a 24-hour basis until the reading of the list of the dead is completed. Three guards will be present, one at each stairwell, to see that people do not go up or down stairs.
- The vigil, as outlined above, will continue until the reading of the list of the dead is completed.

Thereafter, until the University Council meets, the vigil will be continued on a 9-to-5, Monday-through-Friday, basis.

The rules above will be binding through the Council meeting.

It is hoped that the Council meeting will deal with:

a. the resolution on the flag (as passed by the October 15 Assembly);

b. the first two items of the report of the Wild Committee (condemning the continuing American military involvement in Vietnam, calling for the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from that country, and standing beside students in the College who demand a reversal of national priorities away from militarism in all of its guises and toward social reform in this nation).

Flags will not be flown on campus until the Council meeting is held.

After return of the flags to full-staff on October 24, the students continued their vigil in College Hall according to terms of the agreement, and they began work on establishing an appropriate memorial symbolizing a commitment to peace and a feeling of sorrow at the tragic loss of life in Vietnam, including the death of University alumni.

Charles C. Price, Benjamin Franklin Professor of Chemistry, and James A. Hively, a senior in the Wharton School. Similar letters were sent to Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Dr. Goddard stated in his letter to President Nixon that “although this University Assembly was a voluntary group without any legal right to represent the University, I agreed to transmit to the senior officers of the federal government the resolutions passed by the Assembly; the attached resolutions, therefore, represent the views of that segment of the University which congregated that day. I think it would be a great mistake to label the Assembly a demonstration. It was a serious, orderly meeting organized on a voluntary basis. I have no way of evaluating the views of other members of the University who did not attend the Assembly, but it is my estimate that a large segment of the total campus would accept all or most of the resolutions adopted by the Assembly.”

The texts transmitted by Dr. Goddard are:

I. Be it resolved that the Members of the University Community attending this assembly

1. condemn the continuing American military involvement in Vietnam and call for the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from that country and

2. demand a reversal of national priorities away from militarism in all of its guises and toward social reform in this nation. 1,952 for; 86 against.

II. Be it resolved that this assembly of the University Community supports the following resolution passed by the Plenary session of the University of Pennsylvania Community of Students: "...that flag of the University of Pennsylvania shall be lowered to half-
Building Trade Jobs Discussed

"Job Opportunities in the Building Trades" was the subject of a community conference held at the University October 8, under the auspices of the Human Resources Center.

Representatives of 70 community organizations, training groups and minority contractors sent representatives to the conference.

Speakers at the panel on "Training and Job Opportunities in the Building Trades" were D. Wendell Keene, executive vice-president of Winston Burnett Construction Co., a Philadelphia-based nonwhite firm; Kenneth King, job development specialist for Opportunities Industrialization Center; Emerson R. Allen, business manager for the General and Specialty Contractors' Association Inc.; and Robert Robinson, executive director of the Joint Apprenticeship Outreach Program of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council and the Negro Trade Leadership Council. Moderator of the panel was Dr. Edward E. Cahill, coordinator of field services for the Human Resources Center. Also addressing the group was Bennett O. Stalvey, of the Federal Office of Contract Compliance.

Participants in the panel on "Opportunities at the Managerial Level" were Robert Owen, coordinator of Action Construction Team Inc.; Alvin Pierce, secretary of Afro-American Builders; as well as Mr. Keene and Mr. Allen. The moderator was Mrs. Marion B. Fox, coordinator of the Minority Building Trades Project at the Human Resources Center.

Dr. Howard E. Mitchell, Director of the Human Resources Center led the discussion on formation of a permanent coordinating body to bring names of potential trainees to the attention of training groups for referrals.

the University (faculty, students, administrators) of the policies and character of that organization.

III. The University sees an obligation of the employers who utilize University facilities to support the educational process through the interchange of information. Therefore, the Placement Service should encourage a willingness on the part of the employers to meet with any or all students in private session, and to engage in public discussion. In order to facilitate such discussion, the Placement Service will make public as soon as they are known the names of employers arranging for employment interviews on campus and the dates of their visits. Except in the case of educational institutions, this notice shall be provided, at least two weeks before the proposed visit, to the Steering Committee of the Council, the Steering Committee of the Community of Students, WXPX, the Senate Advisory Committee, and the editorial board of the Daily Pennsylvanian. As a condition of the right to conduct employment interviews on campus, any employer requesting the use of University facilities for such purpose may, on petition of members of the University, be required to have its appointed representative discuss in a public meeting those aspects of the policies and character of the organization which are specified in the petition. Such meeting is to be arranged by the Vice Provost for Student Affairs and held not later than the day preceding the proposed visit. The petition must be filed with the Vice Provost for Student Affairs two weeks before the date of the visit and must contain 500 signatures, if notice has been given at least four weeks in advance of the visit. Otherwise, the petition must be filed at least one week before the date of the visit and must contain 300 signatures. A representative of a company responding to a petition shall, on the day of public discussion, be accorded the usual courtesy due an invited guest of the University.

In describing Mr. Betts' new post as a "shirtsleeves" job, Dr. Harnwell said that there is a wide range of problems common to the University, private and governmental organizations, in the immediate campus area and in the larger community, which are now action-oriented and which require marshalling of a variety of community resources.

"His more recent work has been with community groups," Dr. Harnwell said, "helping them to establish a new home for the Walnut Street Center and to develop the West Philadelphia Community Free School plan now being launched in cooperation with the Board of Education. He also participated in designing the system of temporary stores at 38th and Walnut Streets, which enables our local merchants to relocate during the construction of new spaces for them. In addition, he now serves on the Quadripartite Commission as an administration representative."

As Director of Planning and Design, Mr. Betts has been responsible for architectural programming and design supervision, as well as institutional research and long-range planning for the campus. Mr. Betts had served as Assistant to the Vice President for Coordinated Planning in 1965-66.

1. the United States to establish the ending of the war system as a major foreign policy objective of this nation and
2. this University to devote major attention in an organized fashion to ways to bring about this objective. Passed by a substantial majority.

IV. Be it resolved that:
1. We endorse the right of individuals to refuse to fight an unjust war whether on the grounds of pacifism or selective conscientious objection.
2. We support the efforts of all Americans who have refused to participate in the U. S. involvement in Viet Nam.
3. We support the young men who have chosen jail or exile by refusing to be drafted, and those G.I.'s who refuse service in Viet Nam.
4. We regard the jailing of draft registrants, and of many of their supporters as political incarceration and urge that they be granted amnesty.
5. We also urge amnesty for those who have chosen exile instead of military service. Passed.

V. Whereas the U. S. Department of Defense is an integral part of the war system and whereas at present the goals and objectives of the war system are in contradiction to the goals and objectives of the University of Pennsylvania, we recommend that the University of Pennsylvania no longer accept any further research contracts and grants from the Department of Defense and other defense related agencies of the federal government, and to take steps to effect an orderly cessation of existing research contracts and grants from the above-named agencies. 724 for; 1,298 against

VI. Be it resolved that the Members of the University Community attending this assembly request that the President, the Provost, and the Trustees of the University publicly articulate the views expressed by this assembly in the name of this academic community. 1,138 for; 504 against.
Election of Trustees Is Announced

Elected Life Trustees of the University at the 'trustees' meeting, October 10, were Paul J. Cupp and Robert L. Trescher.

Cupp, who is chairman of Acme Markets, Inc., and Trescher, who is partner in the Philadelphia law firm of Dechert, Price and Rhoads, have served as Term Trustees since 1959.

Named Emeritus Trustees for life were Robert Dechert, partner in the Philadelphia law firm of Dechert, Price and Rhoads, and Richard S. Reynolds, Jr., chairman of Reynolds Metals Co. Dechert was named a Trustee in 1928 and Reynolds in 1935.

Cupp, an alumnus of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, is chairman of the Board of Directors of the University City Science Center and a former general chairman of the University's Annual Giving program.

Trescher is a graduate of the University's Wharton School and Law School. A former Chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association, he is a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers and a member of the Committee on Federal Judiciary of the American Bar Association. He is a member of the Board of Governors of the Philadelphia Bar Association and of the House of Delegates of the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

Dechert, a graduate of the University's College of Arts and Sciences and of the Law School, had served as general counsel to the Department of Defense in the Eisenhower Administration.

Reynolds, a graduate of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, served as southeast region chairman in the University's $93 million Capital Campaign which announced receipt of more than $100 million in contributions this spring from alumni and friends of the University.

Kaplan Lecture Scheduled

The third in the series of Stephen Allen Kaplan Memorial Lectures on the Family in History will be given by Professor David S. Landes on the topic, "Buddenbrooks, Blechtroeders, Rothschilds: the Problem of Family Continuity in Business Enterprise," at 4:30 P.M. on Wednesday, November 5 in Room 200, College Hall, under History Department sponsorship.

Dr. Landes is professor of history at Harvard University. He has also been a Junior Fellow in the Harvard Society of Fellows, a Fellow of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford, and an Overseas Fellow of Churchill College, Cambridge University.

The lecture is open free to the public.

Academic Planning Group Formed

Formation of an Academic Planning Committee, authorized last spring by the University Council, has been announced by President Gaylord P. Harnwell. It will assist in establishing academic program priorities and thereby facilitate financial planning.

Functions of the new committee will be:

 To review long-term projections of existing programs or proposals for new programs from the academic and financial viewpoints, following present or newly established University policies.

 To assign priorities to the programs based on academic and financial evaluations.

 To report priorities, with reasons, to the President, for final consideration and action.

 To initiate consideration of proposals for entirely new programs. (It is not anticipated that the Committee would originate programs for already-existing units of the University.)

Members of the committee will be:

Dr. Henry M. Hoenigswald, Chairman, who is professor of linguistics and chairperson of the linguistics department; Dr. Herbert Callow, professor of physics; Dr. Robert R. Marshak, professor of clinical studies and chairman of the clinical studies department in the School of Veterinary Medicine; Paul J. Mishkin, professor of law; Dr. Almarin Phillips, professor of economics and law and chairman of the economics department; Dr. David R. Goddard, provost; Harold E. Manley, vice-president for business and financial affairs; Dr. John N. Hefstetter, vice-provost for research; and two students, yet to be named.

Dr. Harnwell said, "Pennsylvania, like all private universities, is seeing costs rise at a rate which operating income no longer seems able to match. We must do two things if we are not to be faced with unacceptable deficits:

"We must make every effort to increase the unrestricted operating income of the University, and we must allocate our resources carefully. We must identify those programs of excellence which lie within our expected means, and we must give these programs the support they require."

Undergraduates Seated On University Council

Attending the University Council's first fall meeting on September 24 were its first undergraduate members, 14 students chosen in elections held earlier that month.

Their terms will run through May, when elections will be held to choose successors for one-year terms.

In March, the Council had adopted an amendment to its bylaws to include students as full voting members.

Eleven graduate and professional school students chosen in elections last spring already are members of the Council, while five more students remain to be elected by students in those schools.

The undergraduate members of the Council are: Cathy A. Barlow, a junior in the College for Women; Richard A. Clarke, a sophomore in the College; Mark B. Cohen, a senior in the College; Sanford T. Colb, a senior in the College; David Freed, a freshman in the College; Barbara A. Giles, a junior in the School of Allied Medical Professions; Ira R. Harkavy, a senior in the College; Neil S. Lutsky, a senior in the Wharton School; Alice B. Mann, a senior in the College for Women; Robert H. Odell, Jr., a senior in the College; Reginald H. Powel, a sophomore in the College; Randall C. Pokorny, a senior in the Towne School; Andrew R. Wolf, a senior in the College; Rona M. Zevin, a senior in the College for Women.
