Personal Safety: Precautions and Services

Following a delayed report of rape at knife-point near the campus during the first week of school, the chair of the Council Committee on Safety and Security has requested widespread attention to mechanisms for personal safety available to all members of the University on or near campus.

"Male or female—student, faculty or staff," said Carol Tracy, "it is important to know and use the campus bus, know and use the escort service, know and use the personal safety services of the campus police and the off-campus living office."

For graduate students, some of whom are less easily reached by summer mailings than undergraduates, Ms. Tracy urged departmental and graduate group personnel to be especially aware of the services available. "Students coming from other cities, states and countries may have no orientation except what the academic department gives them," she said. "We especially believe that many do not know the University will help off-campus residents to live more safely in the neighborhood."

A short list of services:

Campus Bus: On the schedule shown above, the free campus bus is operated by the Office of Transportation and Communications. The Council Committee on Safety and Security has requested a stop to be added for Superblock, and this is expected in the schedule about December, after the completion of unrelated construction frees a street needed for access.

Escort Service: Dialing R-I-D-E from campus extensions (898-R-I-D-E from other phones) connects with door-to-door escort service which is part student-run (and later at night is operated by campus police). It is best to call 30 minutes ahead (or more), and there are some limitations on distance which will be described on the phone.

Safety Training: Security Specialist Ruth Wells of the campus police conducts safety awareness programs for faculty, staff and student groups on request. She also coordinates victims' problems, from securing psychological counseling to victim-accompaniment in dealing with hospitals, city police and courts. To set up an awareness session or report victim need: Ext. 4481 or 6600.

Off-Campus Living: Director Maye Morrisson has records of safety conditions in West Philadelphia houses and blocks as reported in last year's survey of off-campus residents. She has liaison to neighborhood organizations working on safety, puts students in touch with their block or neighborhood groups, and helps them thread through landlord relations and city housing codes affecting safety and health. For fact sheets or advice, call her at Ext. 5352.

Emergencies: The Campus Police Emergency number is 898-7333 (not to be confused with R-I-D-E, which is 7433), or it can be reached direct via outdoor emergency phones near building entrances—yellow phones, with a blue light over each. For non-emergency calls, dial Ext. 7297 or 7298.

Starting with the 6:40 p.m. run, the Campus Bus will deviate slightly from its established off-campus route to take persons to their place of residence upon request. Persons wishing to return to campus from the residential area to the west after 6:40 p.m. should dial 898-7297 to make an appointment for pickup.

The Campus Bus operates on the above schedule through December 17, 1982, with the exception of November 25, 26, 27, and 28. It resumes on January 3, 1983 and operates every night through the Friday preceding Memorial Day. The Bus is free, but University ID is required. The University has a cooperative arrangement with Drexel University permitting Penn students to use their buses upon showing ID. Drexel buses leave from their Library parking lot at 33rd between Market and Chestnut, and serve Powelton Village and 30th Street Station. Drexel schedules are available also from the U of P Office of Transportation and Communications, P-107, Franklin Building.
On Criticism and Recognition

As most by now may know, President Hackney has agreed to cooperate with the faculty in an annual review of the costs and benefits of the central administration. Some students have been startled by the temerity of the offer of cooperation and are incredulous at the offer of cooperation. Of course, these students have not abandoned their responsibility to review the faculty (in which we have cooperated), castigate Congress, or (rightly) protest the state of the world. The faculty is neither surprised by the temerity of the students nor diminished by knowing that bad performance is criticized and good recognized.

It requires no temerity on the part of a celebrated faculty (including professors of accounting and management) to examine the expenses of the central administration and to report on how effectively they serve the basic academic purpose of the University. To be useful, the review must be continuing and undertaken in a spirit of cooperation with the administration, which will not be diminished by knowing that bad performance is criticized and good recognized.

What the Research Foundation is Funding

Last February, the new Research Foundation of the University published a statistical report showing the number and distribution of awards made in Fall 1981 (Almanac February 2, 1982). Below, Chairman Eliot Stabler furnishes for that cycle, and for Spring 1982, a more detailed account. "As we feel our way through interpretation of the written criteria," he said, "our thinking is that more detailed reporting will help the University community know the range of ideas and projects that can be carried out through these internal awards, even though each award is necessarily quite modest." October 15, he reminded, is the due date for Fall 1982 proposals to 243 AnalytChem/G3 (Ext. 5778). See criteria and format in Almanac September 14, p. 5.
