Ronald O. Perelman, chairman and CEO of Revlon Group Incorporated, has pledged $10 million toward a multipurpose building that will have the facilities proposed three years ago in the Undergraduate Assembly's white paper Year 1990 Outlook on Student Life.

"The education I received has been pivotal to my development," said Mr. Perelman, who took his bachelor's degree in 1964 and MBA in 1966 from the Wharton School. "I'm gratified to be able to give something back to the school and more broadly to the generations of leaders that I'm sure will be produced at Penn. I hope this new facility will play a role in giving future students the same excellent background I received."

Mr. Perelman, a 45-year-old Philadelphian, graduated before the start of construction of Superblock and the Graduate Towers, which added 6500 to the campus dorm capacity and changed Penn to a predominantly residential school. He is now a trustee of the University and member of the Wharton Overseers, as well as chairman of MacAndrews and Forbes Group Incorporated, a New York based holding company. He was the donor of the Ronald O. Perelman Professorship of Finance, held by Dr. Andrew Abel, and has also given to HUP and to the Sol Snider Entrepreneurial Center at Wharton.

His pledge will trigger the next planning stages for what will be known as the Revlon Center—a complex of offices and meeting rooms for graduate and undergraduate student activities and organizations, with rehearsal and performance space for the performing arts. It will incorporate the University Book Store and will have restaurants, stores and a movie theater.

No location has been set, and land at one of the rumored sites—on Walnut Street between 36th and 37th Streets—does not belong to Penn but is leased from the Redevelopment Authority. In A Master Plan for the Campus (Almanac May 17), prepared for the President by the Center for Environmental Design and Planning at GSFA, Professor Alan Levy and his group agree on the importance of a "focal point for University life...to support the broad spectrum of student and faculty activities...". They go on to say the facility should be " centrally located in relation to the campus as a whole, near existing facilities which currently serve University life, including the Annenberg Theaters, the Faculty Club, the proposed ICA, the Sansom Street restaurants, and the retail development at 3401 Walnut Street. The sites between 36th and 38th Street along Walnut Street offer ideal development opportunities."

Elsewhere the Campus Master Plan says the complex should add to, not replace, such existing facilities as Houston Hall, which was the nation's first student union building, and the Center for Environmental Design and Planning. Commonwealth Appropriation: $35.592 Million

On October 13, the State Legislature approved a final version of the University’s Fiscal Year 1989 appropriation, and sent it to the Governor for his approval. The table below shows the Commonwealth appropriation by line item. It should be noted that the total appropriation figure of $35,592,000 does not include approximately $755,000 which the University will receive through a separate appropriation for equipment. When these two figures are added, Penn will receive $36,347,000, an increase of 6.8% over last year.

In July, Governor Casey had approved “partial” appropriations bills for Penn and other colleges and universities. At that time he indicated a willingness to supplement these appropriations if other budgetary matters could be resolved through negotiations with the Legislature. After several months of such negotiations, the Senate and House yesterday approved a series of supplemental appropriations bills for colleges and universities. For Penn, House Bill No. 2374 provides additional funding for New Bolton Center and the Food Animal Clinics within the Veterinary School. These two items are increased to levels representing 7.5% over last year. Additionally, the supplemental bill funds the Center for Animal Health and Productivity at $1,153,000, the Mark W. Allam Dairy Cattle Teaching and Research Facility at $322,000 and a biological waste incinerator at New Bolton Center at $400,000. The amounts appropriated for Instruction, Dental Clinics, Medical Instruction and Veterinary Instruction all remain at the same figure approved by the Governor - 5.5% increases over last fiscal year.

Finally the Legislature approved $500,000 for the University’s Cancer Center through a supplement to the General Appropriations bill.

Synopsis of the October 12 Meeting

Dr. Kim M. Morrison, vice provost for university life, initiated discussion of the University’s alcohol policy (Almanac 10/11/88), stating that it stemmed from a toughening of the Commonwealth’s liquor and Crimes Code that was enacted last May. She explained that the Penn alcohol policy then in place was not responsive to aspects of the new code and that the University had to formulate a new policy during the summer, when students were not available for consultation, so that it could be in place when they returned in September. She noted that the revised State code paralleled actions taken across the country to control underage drinking in response to a series of campus tragedies largely resulting from underage drinking and that Penn’s new policy is in the same tenor as new rules adopted on many other campuses.

In discussion, concern was expressed that the new Commonwealth code forces a revival of the position in loco parentis assumed earlier by colleges and universities. A question was raised as to whether some flexibility in conformance is afforded. Regret was expressed by both faculty members and students that the alcohol policy was written without full consultation. Fraternity members who were present commented that the policy was drafted without proper regard to its effect on the lives of individuals, that the policy is leading to increased drug use and potentially dangerous travel to off-campus parties, and that the bans on beer kegs and outdoor drinking exceed the requirements of the law. A resolution was introduced to suspend the policy until a more generally acceptable one was drawn up. A substitute motion asked the Student Affairs Committee to review the present policy, hold open meetings on the subject, and recommend permanent policy at the December meeting. The motion to substitute passed, but the roll-call vote established that a quorum was not present. The president, as presiding officer, indicated that the substitute motion represented the sense of the meeting and that the Student Affairs Committee Should be instructed accordingly.

Making Memorial Gifts

The family of Helen O’Bannon asked that any contributions in her memory be made either to a Wellesley scholarship fund in her name, or to the University’s Cancer Center headed by Dr. John Glick. In response to inquiries on how these contributions are made, Treasurer Scott Lederman reports:

Cancer Center: Checks should be made payable to the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania and marked or accompanied by a note indicating that the contribution is for the Cancer Center in memory of Helen O’Bannon. They should be sent to Christopher Mason, assistant treasurer, at 440 Franklin Building, Houston Hall.

Scholarships: Those interested in making contributions to the Helen B. O’Bannon Memorial Scholarship fund at Wellesley should address contributions to the Office for Resources, Wellesley College, Wellesley, MA 02181, marked with the name of the fund.

To the University Community

After seeking the advice of a number of colleagues and after careful deliberation, I have decided not to accept the recommendation of the University Council last spring bearing on changes to the revised Guidelines on Open Expression, section III B. his section addresses conduct which continues after the Vice Provost for University Life has declared that conduct to be in violation of the Guidelines and has instructed the participants to modify or terminate their behavior.

The Guidelines were very thoughtfully revised by an able and representative committee which was charged to do so. I believe that before further amendment they should be allowed to operate for a period of time. Should they be found to need further attention, then the case for changing them can be made appropriately before the Council.

—Sheldon Hackney, President

Guidelines on Open Expression

I. Principles

A. The University of Pennsylvania, as a community of scholars, affirms, supports and cherishes the concepts of freedom of thought, inquiry, speech, and lawful assembly. The freedom to experiment, to present and examine alternative data and theories; the freedom to hear, express, and debate various views; and the freedom to voice criticism of existing practices and values are fundamental rights that must be upheld and practiced by the University in a free society.

B. Recognizing that the educational processes can include meetings, demonstrations, and other forms of collective expression, the University affirms the right of individuals and groups to assemble and demonstrate peaceably on campus within the limits of these Guidelines and asserts that such rights shall not be infringed. In keeping with the rights outlined in I.A., above, the University affirms that the substance or the nature of the views expressed is not an appropriate basis for any restriction upon or encouragement of an assembly or a demonstration. The University also affirms the right of others to pursue their normal activities within the University and to be protected from physical injury or property damage.

C. The University shall be vigilant to insure the continuing openness and effectiveness of channels of communication among members of the University on questions of common interest. To further this purpose, a Committee on Open Expression has been established as a standing Committee of the University Council. The Committee on Open Expression has as its major tasks: participating in the resolution of conflicts that may arise from incidents or disturbances on campus; mediating among the parties to prevent conflicts and violations of these Guidelines; interpreting these Guidelines; advising administrative officers when appropriate; and recommending policies and procedures for the improvement of all levels of communication.

II. Definitions

A. For the purposes of these guidelines, the “University community” shall mean the following individuals:

1. Persons who are registered as students or who are on an unexpired official leave of absence.

2. All persons who are employed by the University.

3. Trustees and associate trustees of the University and members of Boards of Overseers or other bodies advisory to the University.

B. For the purposes of these Guidelines, “meeting” and “event” designate a gathering of persons in a University location previously reserved for that purpose. Unless designated as public, meetings are considered to be private. Events are considered to be public. “Demonstration” designates the presence of one or more persons in a University location with the intent to express a particular point of view in a manner that attracts attention, as in protest, rallies, sit-ins, vigils, or similar forms of expression.

III. Standards

A. The University, through the President, the Provost, and the Vice Provost for University Life, shall act to encourage and facilitate free and open expression within these Guidelines.

1. The University shall publish these Guidelines at least once each academic year in a manner that brings them to the attention of members of the University community. The University shall publish the rules adopted pursuant to IV.B.1. by the Committee on Open Expression at least once each academic year in a manner that brings them to the attention of members of the University community.

2. The University shall establish standards for the scheduling of meetings and events. This shall involve:

a. publishing policies and procedures whereby members of the University community, upon suitable request, can reserve and use designated spaces within University buildings for public or private meetings or events;

b. publishing policies and procedures whereby members of the University community, upon suitable request, can reserve and use designated outdoor spaces on the University campus for public meetings or events;

c. publishing policies and procedures that specifically address requests involving groups composed entirely or predominantly of persons who are not members of the University community (see Section VI);

d. consulting with the Committee on Open Expression with regard to the substance of the policies and procedures and the manner of their publication; and, if practicable, consulting with the Committee on Open Expression before denying a request for use of a room, facility, or space by an organization recognized by the University for a reason other than prior assignment of the room, facility, or space. In any event, any such denial must be reported promptly to the Committee.

B. Individuals or groups planning or participating in meetings, events or demonstrations must adhere to the following standards of conduct:

1. Individuals or groups violate these Guidelines if:

a. They interfere unreasonably with the activities of other persons. The time of day, size, noise level, and general tenor of a meeting, event or demonstration are factors that may be considered in determining whether conduct is reasonable;

b. They cause injury to persons or property or threaten to cause such injury;

c. They hold meetings, events or demonstrations under circumstances where health or safety is endangered; or

d. They interfere with unimpeded movement in or out of buildings and rooms and through all passageways.

   a. Student members shall be nominated from undergraduate students, graduate students, and graduate professional students through existing mechanisms for each student body. Undergraduate and graduate and professional students shall rotate majority representation each year. Three undergraduate and two graduate and professional student members shall alternate with two undergraduate and three graduate and professional students every other year.

B. Jurisdiction

The Committee has competence to act in issues and controversies involving open expression in accordance with these Guidelines. The Committee's responsibilities are the following:

1. Issuing rules to interpret or give more specific meaning to the Guidelines. Before adopting a rule, the Committee must hold an open hearing on the proposed rule and receive the views of individuals of groups. An affirmative vote of eight members is required for adoption, modification or recission of a rule to be effective.

2. Recommending to the University Council proposals to amend or repeal the Guidelines. An affirmative vote of seven members is required to make such recommendations.

3. Giving advisory opinions interpreting the Guidelines at the request of a member of the University community for the purpose of advising that person or the University community. Such advice is provided to guide future action. If the Committee does not give a requested opinion, it must indicate its reasons for not doing so.

4. Giving advisory opinions interpreting the Guidelines at the request of administrative officials with responsibilities affecting freedom of expression and communication. Such advice is provided for the purpose of guiding future action.

5. Mediating in situations that involve possible violations of the Guidelines. Those Committee members available at the time may act on behalf of the Committee. In carrying out the mediation function, the Committee or those members present may advise the responsible administrative officials and any other person with respect to the implementation of the Guidelines. Those Committee members who have acted on behalf of the Committee must report on their activities to the full Committee.

6. Reviewing the following administrative decisions for the purpose of providing advice on future actions.

   a. At the discretion of the Committee, administrative decisions involving these Guidelines made without consultation with the full Committee.

   b. All instructions by the vice provost or delegate to modify or terminate behavior under Section III.B.3. of these Guidelines.

7. Investigating incidents involving the application of these Guidelines to aid the Committee in its functions of rulemaking, recommending changes in the Guidelines or issuing advisory opinions. Such functions provide guidance to the University community for future action. The results of Committee investigations for these purposes shall not be a part of the initiation, consideration or disposition of disciplinary proceedings, if any, arising from the incidents.

8. Adopting procedures for the functions of the Committee, varied to suit its several functions, consistent with these Guidelines. Procedures that are not wholly matters of internal Committee practice and any other person with respect to the implementation of the Guidelines or the making of recommendations to amend or repeal the Guidelines.

9. Submitting an annual report to the Council and the University on the status of the Committee's work in the University journal of record.

C. Procedures

1. Except as provided with respect to the mediation function in Section IV.B.5., seven members of the Committee constitute a quorum.

2. The Committee can authorize subcommittees, selected from its own members, to act for the Committee in any matter except the issuance of rules interpreting or implementing the Guidelines or the making of recommendations to amend or repeal the Guidelines.

3. The Committee shall respect the privacy of individuals as its general policy and shall maintain the right to declare the confidentiality of its proceedings.

   a. If a person appearing before the Committee requests that his or her testimony or information be kept confidential, the Committee shall consider such a request. The Committee shall determine whether to honor that request and shall inform that person of its decision before testimony is given.

   b. Minutes of particular Committee meetings may be declared confidential by the Committee or be so declared at the discretion of the chair subject to review by the Committee.

   c. All Committee documents containing confidential material, as determined by the chair, shall be clearly marked "confidential" and shall carry a warning against unauthorized disclosure.

V. Responsibilities for Enforcement

A. It is the responsibility of the Vice Provost for University Life (hereafter referred to simply as the "vice provost") to protect and maintain the right of open expression under these Guidelines.

B. Observation of meetings, events or demonstrations, when deemed necessary by the vice provost to protect and maintain open expression, shall be the responsibility of the vice provost, who may delegate such responsibility. This delegate shall have full authority to act in the name of the vice provost under these Guidelines.

1. The observer (vice provost or delegate) shall identify himself or herself to those responsible for the meeting or event or to the leaders of the demonstration.

2. The vice provost shall attempt to inform the chair of the Committee on Open Expression of meetings, events or demonstrations to which an observer will be sent. The chair may designate a member or members of the Committee to accompany and advise the observer. Such a Committee representative shall also be identified to those responsible for the meeting or event or to the leaders of the demonstration.

3. Except in emergencies, the vice provost's authority under these Guidelines shall not be delegated to employees of the University department of public safety. The role of public safety personnel at a meeting or demonstration is defined below, in Section V.C.3.

4. Any observer or Committee representative who attends a meeting, event or demonstration shall respect the privacy of those involved. If there has been no violation of these Guidelines, other University regulations, or applicable laws, an observer, Committee representative, or public safety employee who attends a meeting, event or demonstration shall not report on the presence of any person at such meeting, event or demonstration.

C. The vice provost or delegate may instruct anyone whose behavior is violating or threatens to violate these Guidelines to modify or terminate such behavior. The instruction shall include notice that failure or refusal to comply is, itself, a violation of Section III.B.3 of these Guidelines.

1. When the vice provost or delegate declares that an individual or a group has violated the Guidelines, he or she may request to examine their University identification. Failure to comply with this request is a violation of the Guidelines.

2. In carrying out this responsibility for safeguarding the right of open expression, the vice provost shall obtain the advice and recommendation of the representatives of the Committee on Open Expression whenever feasible.

3. The vice provost or delegate may request members of the department of public safety to attend meetings, events or demonstrations to help protect the open expression of those involved.

a. Any person acting as an agent of the department of public safety who attends a meeting, event or demonstration on campus shall be clearly identifiable as such and in normal duty uniform. (Arms may be carried if they are part of "normal duty uniform.")

b. Public safety personnel also may attend meetings, events or demonstrations when requested to do so by the person or group responsible for the event, when prominent public figures are involved, or when the director of public safety or delegate determines that there exists an imminent danger of violence at the event.

4. Terminating a meeting, event or demonstration by force is a most serious step, as this action may exacerbate existing tensions and may lead to personal injury and property damage.

a. Avoidance of injury to persons by the continuation of a meeting, event or demonstration is a key factor in determining whether if should be forcibly terminated. Property damage and significant interference with educational processes are also factors to be considered and may be of sufficient magnitude to warrant forcible termination.

b. Whenever possible, the vice provost or delegate should consult with the Committee on Open Expression before seeking a court injunction against those involved in a meeting, event or demonstration or calling for police action.

c. The vice provost or delegate shall inform those involved that he or she intends to seek an injunction or call for police intervention before he or she does so.

d. When a meeting, event or demonstration is forcibly terminated, a full statement of the circumstances leading to the incident shall be published by the vice provost within the University.

D. The department of public safety shall not collect or maintain information about members of the University community, except in connection with alleged crimes, violations of University regulations, or as specifically authorized in writing by the president. This regulation shall not affect personnel information concerning current, past or prospective employees of the department of public safety.

VI. Non-University Persons

These guidelines address themselves explicitly to the forms of individual and collective expression on campus by members of the University community. The extent to which the privileges and obligations of these Guidelines may be made applicable to individuals who are not members of the University community shall be determined by the vice provost or delegate. Participants in such meetings, events and demonstrations on campus are required to comply with the instructions of the vice provost or delegate. (See III.A.2.c.)

Consolidating Student Financial Services: Bursar Moves November 7

Under way in the Franklin Building are preparations for the consolidation of four financial offices of the University: the Bursar's Office, the Financial Aid Office, Penn Plan, and Collections.

The first step in the unification will occur on Monday, November 7, when the Bursar's Office will move from the first floor to the basement of the Franklin Building. This move will make it possible for additional renovations on the first and second floors of the Franklin Building to be completed in time for the final relocation and consolidation, which is slated for early January. All phone numbers and extensions within the Bursar's Office will remain the same during the interim move.

The new unit, to be called the Office of Student Financial Services, will feature a Student Financial Information Center where students can get an answers to such diverse questions as charges on their student account, financial aid, Penn Plan credits, or repayment of loans. This Center will be located near the entrance of the Franklin Building, near the Graduate and Undergraduate Counseling sections. The Student Employment Office will also be located in this area.

The goal of the Student Financial Services unit is to be operational by the time the students return in January from their semester break, according to Joann V. White, associate director of undergraduate student financial aid. "There may be some inconvenience to students in the meantime," she said, "but the long term outlook is for better service, a convenient location, and a consolidation of financial resources which are available to students, their families, and University personnel."
Annual Report of the Steering Committee, 1987-88

This is the ninth annual report of the Steering Committee of the University Council, prepared in accordance with a requirement in the Council bylaws that the Steering Committee shall publish an annual report to the University community, providing a review of the previous year’s Council deliberations which highlights “both significant discussions and the formal votes taken on matters of substance.”

October Meeting
A graduate student, Shawkat Toorawa, was elected to the Steering Committee, filling a vacancy created by a resignation. George Koval, executive director of student financial and administrative services, reported on implementation of the recommendations to improve security in the residence halls made last June by a team of external consultants (Almanac 9/15/87). In discussion, the need for proper training of security desk personnel was stressed, completion dates for the unfinished projects were requested, attention to non-residential buildings and campus lighting was asked, and more cooperation by the Philadelphia Police with the Public Safety Office in securing the perimeter of the campus was recommended. Further suggestions were made that there should be better protection in academic buildings where faculty members and students work at night, extension of the crime reports to cover the entire campus as well as off-campus areas to inform students of dangerous locations, and warnings to parents and other visitors to the campus of the need for safety-consciousness.

November Meeting
During the “questions to officers” period, there was an extended discussion of security. The inclusiveness of the published crime reports was questioned by several persons who, having experienced incidents of crimes against the person and theft, and having known that they were duly reported, did not see them printed in the pertinent reports. A resolution on security (revised slightly from Almanac 11/10/87), supported by the Undergraduate Assembly and the Graduate and Professional Student Assembly, was unanimously adopted. The Council Committee on Safety and Security was to take up the reviews called for in the resolution (operation and organization of the Public Safety Department and whether it should patrol areas adjacent to the campus). A proposed policy on smoking in non-residential buildings (Almanac 11/10/87) was considered. It was affirmed, during the wholly favorable discussion, that the occupants of working areas will decide whether the area is to be smoking or non-smoking, with no override by superiors except for reasons of law or safety. The president stated that, hearing no objection, the proposal would be promulgated as policy.

December Meeting
There was an extended discussion of perceived inequitable treatment of international graduate students, their employment as teaching assistants, and the proficiency of some in the English language. The bylaws were amended to require the Student Affairs Committee to monitor student services via a standing subcommittee and to eliminate the Faculty Grants and Awards Committee. The latter action had been requested by that committee in the belief that its modest budget for small grants could be more efficiently administered and distributed by the Research Foundation.

The final report of the Special Committee to Review the Guidelines on Open Expression, with its proposed further revisions of the guidelines, was considered. Discussion centered on the provision empowering the vice provost for university life to declare that individuals or groups are violating the guidelines, with the corollary that, if they persist in that conduct despite this warning, they will automatically be in violation of the guidelines. Though it was made clear that this was not new wording, it was argued that the exercise of this power by the vice provost should be made in consultation with a member of the Committee on Open Expression (COE) and/or that the decision should be reviewable. It was stated, on the other hand, that a member of the COE may not be available at all times, that the authority of the administrator on the scene must be unquestioned, and that the COE is authorized by the guidelines to review the vice provost’s instructions.

The proposed, revised guidelines were approved, with the understanding that the COE would make a recommendation on the exercise of authority by the vice provost before the end of the spring term.

January Meeting
House Bill 1900, which would require colleges and universities in the Commonwealth to mail crime statistics to prospective students, was discussed. It was noted that the Undergraduate Assembly supports the bill in the view that it would make these institutions look more closely at security on their campuses and work toward improvement. Some reservations were expressed, however, that enactment of the bill would place Penn in a difficult competitive situation with peer institutions whose states do not have such a requirement. Reservations were also voiced regarding the requirement that the information sent to applicants should include the answers to, among others, questions on the use of drugs and alcohol on campus and prior felony convictions among prospective students. It was suggested that the University might support legislation that would require filing statistics with the Commonwealth and making them available on request. The president confirmed that Penn had not adopted a position on the bill.

An extensive series of presentations was made on the University’s interactions with the West Philadelphia community, covering such activities as a “Buy West Philadelphia” guideline in the Purchasing Department, a “Hire West Philadelphia” program in the Employment Office, a research project with the City on recycling as an approach to trash disposal, community-oriented policy studies, care for the mentally ill, student volunteer work in the community, collaboration with the public schools to improve the quality of education, and the position of the University Council Community Relations Committee as a sympathetic bridge between Penn and the community.

February Meeting
Questions were raised regarding the training sessions for the persons who will serve as advisers under the harassment policy and the orientation seminars for freshmen to be undertaken as a part of the new Student Week. Concern was expressed that the sessions may be used to inculcate an ideology rather than merely to inform. Those responsible for the sessions stated that the purpose in both cases is purely to inform.

A proposed policy from the Committee on Research concerning the exclusion of foreign nationals from specific research areas (Almanac 10/20/87) was introduced. The proposal stated that funding agencies may not exclude foreign nationals from participation in research projects but may limit their financial support to particular groups. It provided that exceptions to the policy may be made by the Vice Provost for Research. The proposal was amended to require that the Committee on Research review all requests for exceptions that come to the Vice Provost, concern having been expressed that the committee otherwise would not be aware of exceptions that are granted. An objection was raised that foreign nationals would be discriminated against if they do not receive compensation for research which they are performing and that in such cases alternative funding should be provided. The Vice Provost indicated that he would investigate the possibility of alternative funding in the case of research projects but said that sheer size would preclude similar treatment for training grants. The proposal was adopted as amended.

March Meeting
Comments were made regarding disposition of the ZBT case that the activities should also have been found to be in violation of the harassment policy, that the punishment of an 18-month suspension was a mere “slap on the wrist” that would not discourage future harassment of women and minorities, and that a definition of impermissible conduct is needed to prevent recurrences. A statement was made that a program in the Wharton School to train black, South African managers was “clandestine” and may be “racist,” but the president responded that the purpose of the program is to enable these individuals to improve their career opportunities in South Africa and that it, like all of the University’s programs and research, is open to collegial scrutiny.

A campus vending policy proposed by the Facilities Committee to... make explicit practices which have evolved was adopted (Almanac 3/29/88). The policy generally restricted outdoor vending to fund-raising activities by registered student groups and University departments and to the block of Locust Walk between 36th and 37th Streets. The chair of the Honorary Degrees Committee reported on the work of the committee in arriving at a slate of scholars and creative artists to receive honorary degrees at Commencement in May. He noted that only a modest number of nominations were made by the faculty and urged faculty members to recommend for the next year distinguished persons whom they feel should be honored.

April 13 Meeting

An addition to the Guidelines on Open Expression, proposed by the Committee on Open Expression, was considered. The proposal (initial draft, Almanac 3/88) was made pursuant to a request made to the Committee on Open Expression at the December Council meeting that it give further study to the situation in which an individual refuses to obey an order of the Vice Provost for University Life or delegate to desist and the action is later determined not to have been in violation of the guidelines. The Committee, in its proposal, advanced the view that the individual's record should, in effect, be wiped clean if in a subsequent judicial hearing the action is judged to have been permissible under the guidelines. In discussion, it was argued that the proposal could serve to dilute the authority on the scene of the Vice Provost or delegate, but, upon motion, the revision of the guidelines was approved.

The Student Affairs Committee presented a report on its survey on child care needs (Almanac 3/29/88), with emphasis on the findings that there is a widespread need for pre-school child care among Penn faculty, staff, and students, that the cost of child care is an important consideration for nearly all the parents concerned, that most faculty and staff members responding to the survey believed that child care should be a part of the PennFlex program, and that a majority of students felt that child care should be partially subsidized through the general fee. The report included a resolution calling for the establishment of a planning committee to address all of the issues involved, including creative funding. The Steering Committee was asked to charge an appropriate committee with the task, with the suggestion that a subcommittee of the Personnel Benefits Committee, augmented by additional members, might be the best choice.

Amendments to the bylaws were adopted, specifying that where committees have oversight or advisory relationships to administrators, those individuals should serve as resource persons to the committees but should not vote in their proceedings.

April 27 Meeting

President Hackney, in opening the meeting, noted that it marked the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Council, the first meeting having been held on May 8, 1963. Wayne Glasker, making his final report as chair of the Graduate and Professional Student Assembly after two years of service, drew attention to GAPSA resolutions asking that "trow priority" be assigned to construction of a campus center and that a task force be established "to re-examine the place of residential fraternities on campus." A Council discussion on the campus center was expected in the fall, when prospects for its place in the coming development campaign should be clearer, and the Steering Committee was to take up the resolution on fraternities. Vincent Phaahla, chairelect of GAPSA, expressed dissatisfaction with the Black South African Managers' Program which has been conducted in the Wharton School, saying that it was initiated without consultation with black international students from South Africa and that it has trained personnel for corporations that are staying in South Africa. Elections to the 1988-89 Steering Committee were held.
