Nominee to Washington: Lani Guinier of Law

Penn Law Professor Lani Guinier has been nominated by President Bill Clinton for assistant attorney general for civil rights. Professor Guinier, at Penn since 1988, is a Radcliffe alumna who took her Yale law degree in 1974, a year after the Clintons. She clerked for two years for U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Damon J. Keith (then chief judge of the Eastern District of Michigan), then served as a Referee in Juvenile Court in Wayne County for a year. After three years as special assistant to Drew S. Days, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division in the Carter administration, Professor Guinier joined the NAACP Legal Defense Fund in 1981, heading the voting rights litigation and legislative program. Among the cases she argued and won was a North Carolina case (Thorburn v. Gingles) which helped define the 1982 amendments to the Voting Rights Act. She also brought a case in 1983 naming Arkansas Governor Clinton as defendant; it was settled out of court with a consent decree, liberalizing election laws. Professor Guinier is one of four women and three men nominated to be assistant attorneys general; all appointments require Senate confirmation.

Consultative Committee for the Selection of a President

The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania have no more important responsibility than the selection of a president. Now faced with the need to identify a successor to Sheldon Hackney, the Executive Committee of the Trustees has formed a Consultative Committee to invite and review applications and nominations for the University’s next president.

The Consultative Committee is composed of students, faculty and trustees. It is my hope that the Committee will be able to submit recommendations to the Executive Committee of the Trustees by the end of October. While individual Committee members are free to rank candidates, it is intended that the Consultative Committee itself will present a roster of at least three candidates to the Executive Committee of the Trustees. The Executive Committee is responsible for making a recommendation or recommendations to the full board; the full board in turn has the responsibility to elect Penn’s next president.

Of utmost importance to the integrity of the search is confidentiality. Therefore, confidentiality with regard to all aspects of the search, including the names of specific candidates and the proceedings of the Committee, is expected of every committee member. I will act as the group’s sole spokesperson to the press and other groups.

The University of Pennsylvania is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer, and every effort will be made to identify all qualified candidates, including women and minority candidates.

The outcome of our search will affect the University far into the future. The goal of the Trustees, in which they seek the Committee’s assistance, is to identify the best available individual to become the new president of this extraordinary institution.

— Alvin V. Shoemaker, Chairman of the Trustees

Laura Meyerson Term Chair: Dr. Primosch

Dr. James Primosch, an award-winning composer and pianist who has been assistant professor of music since 1985 and directs the Presser Electronic Music Studio here, has been named to the new Laura Jan Meyerson Term Chair in the Humanities in the School of Arts and Sciences.

The chair was established last year by President Emeritus Martin Meyerson and Margy Ellin Meyerson in memory of their daughter, a gifted writer who was a member of the University’s donor relations office.

Dean Rosemary Stevens applauded the selection of Dr. Primosch, whom she called “a very valuable member of the School.”

James Primosch, who took his B.A. magna cum laude from Cleveland State University in 1978, came to Penn in 1980 for his M.A., studying with Mario Davittovs and George Crumb and Richard Wernick among others.

By the time he took his D.M.A., from Columbia in 1988 he had won over 30 prizes, awards and fellowships, and he has continued to gather honors such as the 1992 Cleveland Arts Prize and this year’s Goddess Lieberson Fellowship of the American Academy of Arts and Letters (whose Charles Ives Scholarship he held earlier) and a designation as 1994 Regional Visiting Artist at the American Academy in Rome. Dr. Primosch has also won a Guggenheim Fellowship, and in addition to numerous composition prizes he placed, as pianist, in Rotterdam’s International Gaudeamus Competition for Interpreters of Contemporary Music in 1977.

Dr. Primosch has published some 14 works, and his instrumental, vocal and electronic compositions have been performed by over 30 ensembles in the U.S. and Europe including the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, Collage, the Twentieth Century Consort, and Speculum Musicae. His Icons was played at the ISCM/League of Composers World Music Days in Hong Kong. He has received commissions from the Koussevitzky and Fromm Foundations, and both his compositions and his performances as piano soloists have been recorded on a number of labels including CRI, Crystal Records and the Smithsonian Collection.

Council: May 5 Elections

The University Council’s May 5 agenda includes election of members to the Steering Committee, comments on behalf of the A-3 Assembly by its chair, Rochelle Fuller, and two discussion items on “Improving the Intellectual Environment at Penn.”

The discussion items are a report by Provost Michael Aiken on the Visiting Committee on Undergraduate Education’s first visit to Penn, and a preliminary report of the Student Affairs Committee, led by Dr. Stephen Gale.

Volume 39 Number 32
The following statement is published in accordance with the Senate Rules. Among other purposes, the publication of SEC actions is intended to stimulate discussion between the constituencies and their representatives. We would be pleased to hear suggestions from members of the Faculty Senate. Please communicate your comments to Senate Chair David K. Hildebrand or Executive Assistant to the Faculty Senate Chair Carolyn Bardon, 15 College Hall/6303, 898-6943.

Actions Taken by the Senate Executive Committee
Wednesday, April 28, 1993

1. Academic Planning and Budget Committee. The Past Senate Chair stated that many of the issues have been brought directly to SEC through regular attendance by the President and Provost. She further stated that with a new administration coming in the Academic Planning and Budget Committee becomes an important place for the faculty to be represented.

2. Faculty Participation in University Council. It was moved, seconded and carried “that the Senate Executive Committee at this time intends to continue its participation in University Council. SEC will discuss the proposed modifications of University Council when the report becomes available and will vote no later than January 31, 1994 on its continued participation.”

3. Task Force on Just Cause and Other Personnel Procedures. Extended discussion ensued on how and when to vote on the revised procedure, which included the suggestion that voting be done by each of the schools versus the faculty as a whole and that a motion at this meeting be taken as the beginning of a lengthy, gradual discussion and amendment process that would lead to a vote on the revised procedure. No school should be able to veto a majority vote of the entire faculty. It was urged that decision on what proportion of the faculty voting would decide the vote be deferred until a full discussion among the faculty had taken place and the faculty view had been heard on how to vote. It was moved: “that the Senate Executive Committee calls for a vote by the entire faculty on the Proposed Revision of the Task Force on Just Cause Procedure and Other Personnel Procedures. SEC will determine the percent of the vote required for adoption at a later date. No school shall have a determining vote.” A motion to table failed and the amendment was adopted.

4. Senate Committee on Committees. Nominations were made for membership on the Consultative Committee for a President, University Council Steering Committee, and Exit Interview Panels.

5. Faculty Senate Agenda for 1993-94. SEC agreed that Senate Chair Gerald J. Porter should proceed with his proposal for the faculty to articulate a vision of the University and to reexamine the fundamental structures of the University with the goal of presenting the faculty plan for the future of the University to the new administration.

On the “Water Buffalo” Case
The first exchange in this week’s Speaking Out concerns a student disciplinary case now pending. No University statement on the facts of the case was available, under the Buckley Amendment protecting student records and under Penn restrictions on discussion of pending cases. Questions about the case have arisen nationally, however (beginning with a Wall Street Journal editorial April 26), and a general response was given by President Sheldon Hackney in a letter to the Philadelphia Inquirer April 29 that, “Whether a student has engaged in racial harassment according to our very narrowly defined policy is now up to a judicial panel of students and faculty to determine. If errors are made, ample avenues of appeal are available after the judicial panel has reached its conclusion. Those who think they know what the outcome should be are impatient with the process, but that process must be allowed to run its course.” – K.C.G.

Memorial Day Reminder
This is a reminder to the University community that the last recognized holiday in this fiscal year (July 1, 1992—June 30, 1993) is Memorial Day, which will be celebrated on Monday, May 31, 1993. Staff members who are absent from work either the work day before a holiday, the work day after a holiday, or both days, will receive holiday pay, provided that absence is charged to pre-approved vacation or personal days, or to sick days substantiated by a written note from the employee’s physician.

Vacations and holidays for Hospital employees or those employees in collective bargaining units are governed by the terms of Hospital policy or their respective collective bargaining agreements. —Division of Human Resources

E. Policies Concerning Academic And Administrative Officers

1. Consultative Procedures for the Election of a President

Article 3.2 of the Statutes of the University states: “When it becomes necessary to elect the President, the Executive Committee of the Trustees shall convene a consultative committee, composed of trustees, faculty and students, to identify and recommend candidates for review by the Executive Committee. The consultative committee shall be advisory to the Executive Committee. The composition of and procedures governing the consultative committee shall be specified in a Standing Resolution of the Trustees.”

The consultative committee to advise the Executive Committee in the nomination of a candidate or candidates for president shall be chaired by a trustee and, in addition, shall be composed of an equal number of trustees and members of the Faculty Senate and half that number of students. The Executive Committee shall determine the overall size of the consultative committee. The trustee members shall be selected by the Executive Committee and shall include at least one alumni trustee. The faculty members shall be selected by the Faculty Senate Executive Committee. Half of the student members shall be undergraduates, and half shall be graduate/professional students. The student members shall be selected by the appropriate student governance organizations. The charge to the consultative committee shall come from the Executive Committee and shall be reviewed by the consultative committee. The consultative committee shall endeavor to carry out a broad search and solicit suggestions from the entire University community, alumni, and friends of the University.

Acceptance of appointment to the consultative committee signifies full acceptance of the obligation to preserve the confidentiality of the identity of the candidates and the proceedings of the committee, except where disclosure of such matters is expressly authorized by the consultative committee as part of its efforts to obtain information about and to evaluate candidates. The members of the consultative committee shall, in a manner consistent with their obligation of confidentiality, attempt to obtain information about inside and outside candidates from a broad range of faculty, students, and administrators at this and other institutions.

In reporting to the Executive Committee, the consultative committee shall endeavor affirmatively to recommend at least three candidates. The consultative committee may rank-order the candidates that it affirmatively recommends to the Executive Committee.

Members of the Executive Committee shall endeavor to make a nomination or nominations for president from among the candidates affirmatively recommended by the consultative committee. In making a nomination or nominations, members of the Executive Committee are not bound by any rank-order recommended by the consultative committee. If members of the Executive Committee, after review of the recommendations of the consultative committee, wish to nominate a candidate or candidates not affirmatively recommended by the consultative committee, the Executive Committee shall so inform the consultative committee and seek the consultative committee’s specific advice about the proposed nomination or nominations before presenting such nomination or nominations to the Trustees. When presenting a nomination or nominations for president to the Trustees, the Executive Committee shall communicate to the Trustees the views of the consultative committee regarding the candidate or candidates so nominated.

The consultative committee shall submit a final report to the University community which shall include the relevant facts necessary to inform the University about the search process.
Racism/Civility: A Two-Way Test

Since one test of the fairness of a rule is the consistency of its application, I am wondering whether the sorority members who produced an inconsiderate level of midnight noise that irritated a dormitory full of sleeping and studying students will be asked to apologize to the students thus disturbed for action “that has the purpose or effect of interfering with an individual’s academic or work performance” [referenced both in the Sexual and Racial Harassment Policies], and if the appropriate notations will be made on their transcripts, and if they will be required to go to seminars about courteous ways to behave at midnight on campus.

I am wondering as well just who would have been up before the JIO for lack of civility if white male fraternity members (they had been) engaged in this level of disturbance.

Finally, I am wondering whether, if “water buffalo” can be interpreted as a punishable sexist or racist term, the term “pig,” as applied to males, and most often white males, is also to be eliminated from the possibilities of passionate discourse.

As for the assistant JIO’s analysis that the relevant criterion for judgment is the interpretation of Jacobowitz’s remarks by the young women complainants, I am wondering where this leaves the assistant JIO’s comments about the incident, which can be seen as offensive on the grounds of both logic and fairness. (The assistant JIO’s analysis is not quoted directly in the Philadelphia Inquirer account, but is paraphrased by Eden Jacobowitz. It is possible Jacobowitz is not interpreting her correctly, but if the only rule is what the hearer believes, perhaps this does not matter.)

The issue, of course, is not whether the assistant JIO’s comments or Eden Jacobowitz’s offend me or anyone else, but whether speech that people may consider offensive is by that fact, actionable. My understanding is that the Office of the JIO was established to keep campus conflicts from rising to the level of litigiousness and lawyers; yet the message from the JIO’s office over the last several years is clearly different—that every real or perceived insult or offense can and ought to be punished by bringing to bear the parental power of the University.

The Office of the JIO exists to provide assurance to the University community that its values and norms will be upheld. The policies it enforces have been created by the various governance units of the University and promulgated by the President. It does not selectively nor capriciously enforce policies in order to unfairly limit student behavior.

The procedures which govern complaints, charges, settlements and hearings were developed with broad community participation. Any student who may be a part of a judicial inquiry is entitled to and can expect fairness and consideration regardless of his/her role in the process.

Any member of the University community who wants further information about the role of the JIO is invited to meet with me or members of the Judicial Advisory Board (comprised of faculty, staff and students). If you have doubts about the integrity of the office, we’d especially like to hear from you.

— Catherine Schifter, Interim JIO

Patent Policy Questions

It needs to be emphasized that the detailed proposals to revise the patent policy published in the Almanac Supplement of April 20 target only one part of the range of questions raised by university management of intellectual property. The Faculty Handbook’s discussion of copyright is an unintelligible mishmash, which appears to claim that the University owns the copyright to all work created by the faculty. It further makes egregious mis-statements about the legal environment, for it has apparently not yet been revised to take into account the 1976 Copyright Act. At a time when copyright practice is being shaken by the adoption of new techniques of electronic information distribution, the subject deserves urgent attention.

— James J. O’Donnell, Professor of Classical Studies and Coordinator, Center for Computer Analysis of Texts

Response from the JIO

Dr. Marvin’s comments and questions regarding an alleged incident and its adjudication cannot be responded to by the JIO or any member of the JIO staff. It is unfortunate, however, that she would accept any disclosure obviously proffered by one party to a case, as legitimate or accurate.

The nature of what is “actionable” within the University’s judicial processes is clearly delineated in its various policies which are published in Policies and Procedures and updated in Almanac. Dr. Marvin’s assertion that “the message from the JIO’s office over the last several years is clearly different—that every real or perceived insult or offense can and ought to be punished by bringing to bear the parental power of the University” is unfounded and just plain wrong.

The Office of the JIO exists to provide assurance to the University community that its values and norms will be upheld. The policies it enforces have been created by the various governance units of the University and promulgated by the President. It does not selectively nor capriciously enforce policies in order to unfairly limit student behavior.

The procedures which govern complaints, charges, settlements and hearings were developed with broad community participation. Any student who may be a party of a judicial inquiry is entitled to and can expect fairness and consideration regardless of his/her role in the process.

If you have doubts about the integrity of the office, we’d especially like to hear from you.

— Catherine Schifter, Interim JIO

Response from Mr. Sammut

Professor O’Donnell’s letter is most welcome. The ambiguity he points to in the Faculty Handbook discussion of copyright has been mentioned by many members of the faculty. A related policy, Computer Software, is also past its scheduled review date.

The draft policies on patents and inventions, and tangible research property, are only two sections of what will be a comprehensive intellectual property policy. The process for updating policies for copyright and computer software, and creating a policy for trademark, will begin this summer.

Dr. Peter Patton, Vice Provost for Information Systems and Computing, will lead the effort and hopes to assemble a University-wide ad hoc committee for this purpose by the fall semester. The committee will be charged with writing the new policies. We anticipate that a campus dialogue on the issues will take at least the 1993-94 academic year. Faculty interested in assisting in the process are welcome to contact the Provost’s Office or Vice Provost Patton.

More on Just Cause/SAS

Morris Mendelson (Almanac April 20) still defends the proposed University-wide tribunal and the loss of appeals to one’s school faculty and to the trustees by claiming that in one case (in our thirty years) there was a faculty failure to impose a termination or suspension for plagiarism.

The fault was not all the faculty’s. That very year, the Provost had secured an amendment to the “just cause” procedures that allows imposition of “a lesser penalty” (despite my vigorous objections), and the school’s committee took advantage of that. There were four other administrative failures contributing to that same case:

1. The original procedural mistakes occurred with procedural advice from the University General Counsel’s office (later found by SCAF to be impermissible);
2. The school’s dean signed an agreement not to prosecute further in exchange for no raise for one year;
3. The Provost refused to re-open the prosecution because of #2; and
4. After the recommended lesser penalty, the Provost could have supported the opinions of a majority of SCAF to the trustees that there were sufficient procedural mistakes to remand the case to the school.

No genuine need for so drastic a change can be based on a failure to which the administration contributed four different times, especially one that decreases faculty autonomy and self-discipline.

The faculty of Arts and Sciences will do very wisely to declare by mail ballot that they

Adding Queries on Just Cause

In Almanac April 20 the chair of the Task Force on Revision of Just Cause and Other Personnel Procedures, Morris Mendelson, had a letter in Speaking Out, “Just Cause and the FAS.” I am afraid that I must, once again, take exception to his letter. Whether or not one agrees with the stand being taken by the CAFR of SAS, I think Mendelson continues to obfuscate the issues and that there are serious flaws in the report of the Task Force. I realize that I only have the original and that I am not aware of changes which have been made since. I think there is nothing further to be gained by arguing over specific points in his letter. I hope, however, that the ongoing “arguments” and letters caused faculty who normally do not read Almanac to read it and consider the issues.

I think that the procedures relating to “just cause” are extremely important and that it is important for the faculty to take an interest in, and give thought to them. The report of the Task Force must come to a vote of the faculty and they should vote after adequately considering the problems and the report.

Concerning the issues of influence and power by administrators such as Deans, I would suggest, even though it is time-consuming, that faculty read the rules, as they are now, and the Task Force Report and come to their own conclusions. If faculty have any questions, they should discuss them with members of their school’s CAFR or the Senate CAFR.

I would lastly like to raise a few more points about the report for consideration. The make-up of the “University Just Cause Panel” and the “University Tribunal” states specifically that they be composed of tenured professors. I do not know if that means only full professors or if it also includes associate professors. Now, both—and also assistant professors—can serve on school CAFRs; this needs to be clarified and thought about. However, it clearly prevents “clinician educators” from serving. I think this is a major deficit and/or oversight. Those faculty are already fighting the “feeling” of second-class citizens and this will not only reinforce but cause them to be misrepresented not only in just-cause deliberations but also in deliberations concerning Misconduct in Research and problems related to disability and incapacity.

I hope the Faculty will take an interest in the issues, try to understand them, and VOTE.

Alan M. Klide, Associate Professor of Veterinary Anesthesia and Chair, VCAF

Ed Note: The letters of Dr. Ross and Dr. Klide would normally be accompanied by a response from Dr. Mendelson, who is on a research trip abroad. For an update on the status of the proposals, see SEC Actions, page 2 of this issue.

Buy West Philadelphia: An Update
Renewing Penn’s Purchasing Commitments to Minority and West Philadelphia Business Communities

To the University Community

Ten years ago the University established a “Buy West Philadelphia” program for the purpose of increasing the number and amount of purchases made from suppliers in the West Philadelphia community. During the intervening years various efforts in support of that program have been designed and carried out. Among those efforts were: the Preferred Vendor Program that was designed to identify and establish minority firms as Penn’s primary suppliers for certain requirements; the West Philadelphia Vendor Reception at which Penn’s commitment to community businesses was announced; the formal linkages established between Penn and several minority business support groups; and the continuing attendance at various minority business trade fairs by University representatives.

Throughout this period it has been our consistent intention to ensure that minority, women, and West Philadelphia businesses and suppliers be given the opportunity to provide services and materials to the University.

These efforts have helped produce a steady increase in University purchases made from minority, women, and West Philadelphia suppliers: in 1986, $2.2 million in purchases were made from minority and women suppliers; in just the first 9 months of FY 1993, that amount has grown to more than $8.9 million. During the same period, purchases from West Philadelphia suppliers have grown from $1.3 million to more than $7 million, and purchases from Black-owned businesses have increased almost ten-fold from merely $147,824 to over $1.1 million.

Now, as we live through a period of continuing economic sluggishness, we think it is important to highlight and renew our institutional commitment to these objectives, as they serve the mutual interests of both the University and our local community. More than ever before, there is a need to expand and re-emphasize our commitment to businesses owned by racial or ethnic minorities or by women, and to those located in our city and region, and in West Philadelphia in particular. We want to ensure that they receive a fair share of University contracts for goods and services, including design, engineering and construction. Though we have made significant progress in fulfilling this policy objective over the past decade, the University has committed itself to continue to significantly increase the presence of minority suppliers in future years. For FY 93, extremely ambitious goals of $12 million in purchases from minority and women suppliers, $10 million in purchases from West Philadelphia suppliers, and $1.5 million from Black-owned suppliers, were set by the University, and we expect to meet or exceed those targets by the end of the current fiscal year.

Several new programs have also been initiated, both within the University and externally, for this purpose. Among these are the establishment of a full-time minority business coordinator in the Purchasing Department and the signing of three major contracts with minority business partnerships worth some $30 million over the next five years (see box at right for details). These minority/majority firm partnerships were initiated and catalyzed by the University to help Penn’s existing minority vendors move beyond relatively low levels of business with the University into significantly larger dollar-value, multi-year contracts.

This effort will continue to require the cooperation of the entire University community, including the Medical Center, and we are asking all deans, directors, department heads, managers, business administrators, and purchasing officers to lend a helping hand in reaching our goals for FY94 and beyond. In particular, we have asked the Purchasing Department to assume responsibility for locating and qualifying minority, women, and West Philadelphia suppliers so that they may be included in the procurement selection process.

Purchasing will continue to assume a leadership role in this area and will specifically request your support of qualified participating suppliers. Your cooperation in utilizing those suppliers will be a key to the success of this effort.

The University and its administration are deeply committed to the objective of increasing our purchasing of goods and services from qualified minority, women, and West Philadelphia suppliers. We ask all members of the University community to join with us in that effort.

Michael Aiken, Provost
Janet Hale, Executive Vice President

Three Minority Partnership Agreements

The University has signed three significant agreements with partnerships of minority or West Philadelphia businesses and majority firms as part of its renewed efforts to expand the participation of minority, women, and West Philadelphia businesses in providing products and services to the University. The University initiated and catalyzed these minority/majority firm partnerships in order to help Penn’s existing minority vendors move beyond relatively low levels of business with the University into significantly larger dollar-value, multi-year contracts. The three contracts with minority/majority business partnerships, worth some $30 million over the next five years, are described below:

— Janet Hale, Executive Vice President

The Chronicle on the Internet

The Chronicle of Higher Education now provides highlights of each edition on the Internet, under the title ACADEME THIS WEEK. Users can open and read—and even print—files of news synopses, events, grant deadlines, job openings and subscription information. A new edition is posted every Tuesday beginning at noon, EST. Past editions are deleted. The Chronicle is reportedly the first major newspaper to offer portions of its editorial contents along with extensive listings of job openings in electronic form. ACADEME THIS WEEK is available on the Internet on many Gopher servers under "All the Gopher Servers in the World." Users with their own Gopher software can log into it directly at "chronicle.merit.edu". For more information about access to this service, e-mail questions to "help@chronicle.merit.edu".

There are several ways to the Chronicle of Higher Education's new service. Almanac found it by the route shown at left: from Penn's Home Gopher server (gopher.upenn.edu) window, open "Gopher Servers Worldwide," then "All the Gopher Servers in the World," the location of ACADEME THIS WEEK. Opening the "New in academe this week" file provides the set of full-text news briefs shown at left.

A shorter route to the Chronicle's online articles also exists on the Home Gopher Server: simply open the "Internet Sampler" directory to find another copy of ACADEME THIS WEEK.

Almanac on PennInfo

The contents of Almanac—complete except for extra-wide tables that resist successful display with the current system—can now be found on PennInfo every week, which makes them available off-campus via the Internet. Contents are posted each week of publication, normally on Wednesday after the Tuesday edition, with keywords enabling users to search for specific sections or documents. Articles appear in text form (not in facsimile—yet; see below). Issues from January 12, 1993, are online at present.

To access Almanac on campus, open PennInfo and choose "About the University of Pennsylvania," then "Publications." Open the "Almanac" folder and then select an Almanac issue by date. A list will appear as shown at left (articles are in order of pagination). Articles are in full text and can be downloaded. The monthly "At Penn" calendar is also filed in "Almanac" under the "Almanac Monthly Calendars" folder as well as in "Calendars and Events" on the main menu.

Facsimile to Come? Though publications using body type under 12 points can't yet do this without remaking the edition, student editor Nathan Sasser of SEAS's Don't Panic presents this quarterly to Mac users as a 5.8" x 8.5" color graphic via PennInfo. Choose "Schools" then "SEAS", then "Dining Philosophers Newsletter" and open a page at a time. In a standalone version, pages read continuously.
--- DEATHS ---

Dr. John Clayton Kohl, emeritus professor of civil engineering-transportation, died on March 18 at the age of 84. A memorial tribute by the faculty of the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences will appear in Almanac May 11.

Marlies Russo-Stock, administrative assistant at the Institute for Research on Higher Education, died April 24 at the age of 38 in an automobile accident. A German native, who became a U.S. resident in 1973, Ms. Russo-Stock earned an associate’s degree in applied science at Camden County College in 1983. She began studying toward a bachelor’s degree in business administration at the Wharton Evening School in 1991, when she also joined the IHRE staff.

She is survived by her husband, Art Fendt, of Sewell, NJ; her parents, Kurt and Erna Stock; and brother, Dr. Manfred Stock, of Germany. A memorial scholarship is being established in her name in the Wharton Evening School. Contact Susan Shuman or Dan Shapiro, 896-4585, for information about this scholarship.

--- OFFICE OF THE JIO ---

This is the March monthly report from the Judicial Inquiry Office which was reported to The Daily Pennsylvanian, Almanac, The Graduate Perspective, and The Vision and is to inform the University community at-large of the types of complaints brought to this office in any given month during the academic year. The information is presented in aggregated format, by complaint type. The number of complaints are indicated by Year to Date (YTD) as well as for the immediately previous month. The number of withdrawn or dropped complaints are noted, as well as those for which an informal settlement was negotiated, and for which the investigation is still pending.

It is important to recognize that there are certain artifacts in the data as presented. First, with any given complaint, there may be more than one respondent and different outcomes/charges per respondent. Therefore, while the current total number of complaints is 129, the total number of respondents is 130. Secondly, with any given complaint, there may be multiple charges per complaint or per respondent. Thus, while the current total number of complaints is 129, the total number of potential charges is 187. Thirdly, during the process of an investigation of a complaint, additional respondents and/or charges may be added. So, while the current number of respondents is 130 and the current number of potential charges is 187, both of those numbers may change as any investigation progresses and draws to a close. And lastly, as an investigation comes to a close, a complaint may be dropped/withdrawn due to lack of evidence to support the complaint, the complaint type may change, or the complainant may withdraw his/her complaint. Therefore, while there are currently 17 potential charges pending, this number does not indicate that all these charges will result in settlements, nor does it indicate that if a settlement is achieved the charges will be the same as the original complaint.

If anyone has any specific questions regarding the data presented in the chart, please contact the Judicial Inquiry Office at 896-5651. We will gladly answer your questions to the best of our ability.

¹ YTD stands for Year to Date. These figures indicate the number of complaints which have been reported to the JIO from September 1, 1992 through March 31, 1993.
² Number Reported refers to the number of cases which came to the attention of the Office of the JIO during this month only. Cases come to the attention of this office by one of three main sources: a copy of a University of Pennsylvania Police report is forwarded to us, a copy of an incident report is forwarded to us from one of the University residences, or a complainant comes directly to this office to file a complaint.
⁵ Number Pending refers to those complaints for which the investigations were not completed at the time of this report. This occurs due to 1) time when complaint was received in the Office of JIO (i.e., late in the month), 2) discovery of need for further investigation, 3) difficulty in contacting people involved in complaint, 4) scheduling problems.
⁶ This number represents the total number of potential charges, not the total number of respondents to complaints or the total number of complaints.
