Penn Law: A Record Gift of $15 Million Launches the School’s ‘Leadership Initiative’

Alumnus and Trustee Henry R. Silverman has made a gift of $15 million to the University of Pennsylvania Law School—the largest outright gift ever to an American law school, President Judith Rodin announced last week.

Mr. Silverman, L’64, is president and chief executive officer of Cendant Corporation, Stamford, Conn., and Parsippany, N. J., a global leader in consumer and business services.

His record-breaking gift will support a professorship, legal scholarships and research, in addition to restorations and renovations of the original Law School building, which Dr. Rodin called the School’s “intellectual and ceremonial heart.”

The classic building on 34th Street between Chestnut and Sansom, dating from 1900, will be renamed Henry R. Silverman Hall in recognition of his generosity. “We are enormously grateful for Henry’s commitment, both to the Law School and to the University,” Dr. Rodin said, adding that “this leadership gift will enable us to continue to build on our distinguished past and improve ourselves in the present to benefit future generations of students and faculty.”

Mr. Silverman responded, “As a graduate, and having realized the benefits and rewards of a truly world-class education at Penn Law School, I am particularly gratified to make this gift and trust it will help both students and faculty build on the institution’s rich history of academic excellence.”

The Leadership Initiative: The Law School has recently developed an ambitious plan for a leadership program that will combine the strengths of legal education with perspectives drawn from management and other sister professions and academic disciplines. “This gift launches the Leadership Initiative in the most fitting way imaginable,” said Dean Colin S. Diver, calling it the “linchpin of the school’s plans. It is the largest gift to an American law school; it will be used to establish a home and an endowment for the leadership program; and its donor, Henry R. Silverman, is the perfect embodiment of the lawyer-leader whom we seek to educate.

“We have a vision of legal education as preparation for leadership,” he continued, “a combination of interdisciplinary studies and strong disciplinary training designed to prepare our students for the challenges of a changing legal profession in a rapidly changing society.”

Consistently ranked among the top schools in the U.S., Penn Law is known as a leader in teaching law as a field of knowledge related to other academic disciplines, the Dean pointed out, with instructional programs that consider not only the theory and practice of law, but also the place of American law among the other leading legal systems throughout the world.

About Mr. Silverman: In addition to serving as a trustee of the University, Mr. Silverman, 57, is executive vice chairman of the board of trustees of the New York University School of Medicine and the NYU Health System, a director of the NYU Child Study Center, a trustee of the Hospital for Joint Diseases and a trustee of the Whitney Museum of American Art.

Cendant Corporation, ranked among the 100 largest corporations in America, with a market capitalization of more than $30 billion and operations in more than 100 countries, was formed through the 1997 merger of CUC International, Inc., and HFS, Inc., which Mr. Silverman founded in 1990 and served as its chairman and chief executive officer.

Cendant has three principal segments: Membership Services, which provides access to travel, shopping, auto, dining and other services through more than 66.5 million memberships worldwide; Travel Services, the leading franchisor of hotels and rental car agencies worldwide, the premier provider of vacation exchange services, and the second largest fleet management company; and Real Estate Services, the premier franchiser of residential real estate brokerage offices, a major provider of mortgage services to consumers, and a global leader in corporate employee relocation.
Special Meeting of the Senate Executive Committee Meeting
Tuesday, March 3, 1998 — 12-1:30 p.m.
Faculty Senate Office, 210 Houston Hall

Agenda
Discussion on partial report from the Senate Committee on Administration

COUNCIL

Council Open Discussion Period

Building on University Community interest in the Open Forum (Council meeting of January 28, 1998), the Steering Committee of the University Council, at its meeting of February 25, 1998, unanimously agreed to devote 15 minutes of each University Council meeting, beginning with Council on April 22, to respond to issues presented by any member of the University Community. We ask that you send your issue/question to your constituency chair who will take responsibility for collecting information for a response and bringing the question and relevant documentation to Steering for additional input. Steering will then place items on the Council agenda under the “question and answer” time slot, according to the order in which items are received. Should the issue be one that Steering decides needs broad deliberation and discussion by Council, it will be scheduled as a separate agenda item for a forthcoming Council meeting, as promptly as is possible.

This innovation is dedicated to Council’s expressed interest in providing a direct route for Community members to bring issues of importance to Council and receive a timely response. Furthermore, we appreciate the opportunity to be responsive to written communication, in this case Daily Pennsylvanian editorials, calling for broader participation in Council.

Please address your questions in typewritten form through campus mail, or through e-mail to your constituency chair.

Annenberg Center Director: Michael Rose

Dr. Michael J. Rose, executive director of the Glassboro Center for the Arts at Rowan University since 1988, has been named Managing Director of the Annenberg Center. The appointment, effective March 16, was announced by Interim Provost Michael L. Wachter, who called Dr. Rose “enormously creative, energetic and knowledgeable about the performing arts,” and praised his “strong financial, marketing and managerial skills.”

Dr. Rose succeeds Stephen Goff, who has been with the Annenberg Center since its inception in 197l and became managing director in 1976. Mr. Goff resigned last August but agreed to continue in office during the search for a successor.

An alumnus of Hamilton College, Dr. Rose received a master’s degree in German literature and his Ph.D. in comparative literature from the University of Michigan. He also holds a master’s degree in comparative literature from Brooklyn College, and an MBA from Drexel. Before taking over the Glassboro Center he was Executive Director of the Performing Arts Center at Richard Stockton College in New Jersey for 11 years.

As head of the Glassboro Center, Dr. Rose has led a highly successful enterprise. To its halls—including a 910-seat concert hall and a 235-seat recital hall—he brought performances ranging from the New York City Opera and Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre to the Canadian Brass and Moscow Radio Symphony; from classical soloists James Galway, Isaac Stern, and Andrae Watts to actors Mandy Patinkin and Loretta Swit; from jazz musicians Wynton Marsalis, Diane Schuur, and Pat Metheny to international programs such as the Chieftains, Vienna Boys Choir, and Ladysmith Black Mambazo; from nationally touring Broadway musicals such as Grease, Tommy and Damn Yankees to family events such as the Flying Karamazov Brothers and Peking Acrobats.

He collaborated with Rowan faculty, students and staff as well as with artists to enhance programming and outreach, developing among other things an extensive program of young people’s matinees. “He has helped to establish Glassboro as southern New Jersey’s major performing arts venue, with an ambitious and successful program and the most diversified audiences among New Jersey’s state universities,” according to the news announcement.

“...He established innovative programs linked to students, introduced magnet programs for area school children, developed a broad-based Leadership Board to aid the Center’s development and marketing efforts, instituted well-managed budgets, and established broad public recognition for the University based upon its quality arts programming.”

Dr. Rose said he looks forward to working with Penn’s many constituencies on campus, in the local community, and in the Philadelphia arts community. “My goal will be to grow the Annenberg Center’s audiences and broaden its programming base.”

Dr. Bernheimer, a Distinguished Scholar of Comparative Literature

Dr. Charles Bernheimer, an influential writer and scholar of Romance languages and comparative literature here since 1988, died on February 21 at the age of 55. His death, of pancreatic cancer, took place in Berkeley, California, where he and his wife maintained a home.

Born in Bryn Mawr on August 16, 1942, Charles Bernheimer was educated at Haverford College, from which he received his B.A. magna cum laude in 1963 with highest honors in English. After studying at Gottingen for a year in 1964, he moved to Harvard for his M.A. (1966) and Ph.D. in comparative literature (1973). Joining SUNY/Buffalo as an assistant professor in 1970, he rose to full professor of English and comparative literature there, and joined Penn as a full professor in 1988.

During his time here, he served as chair of the Program in Comparative Literature and Literary Theory. He is the author of two books Flaubert and Kafka: Studies in Psychopoetic Structure (Yale 1982) and Figures of Ill Repute: Representing Prostitution in Nineteenth-Century France (Harvard 1989) which is to be published in France in translation under the title Esthétiques de la prostitution: De Balzac à Picasso.

In addition to publishing numerous articles and book chapters he was the editor of three other books—one of them entitled In Dora’s Case: Freud-Hysterial-Feminism in collaboration with Claire Kahane (Columbia 1985). He was working on a book called Decadent Subjects at the time of his death, and he had just edited, in collaboration with Richard Kaye, a collection of essays entitled The Queen of Decadence: Salome in Modern Culture, which will be published by the University of Chicago Press.

He was the recipient of many honors and grants including a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1984 and an ACLS Fellowship in 1990.

Dr. Bernheimer’s work was focused especially on cultural studies and psychoanalytical criticism. He was an active member of the American Comparative Literature Association and was head of the committee that wrote an important report on the state and status of comparative literature in the late twentieth century—a report that resulted in his edited book Comparative Literature in the Age of Multiculturalism (Johns Hopkins 1995).

“Charles Bernheimer was a comparatist in the widest sense of the term,” said Dr. Lance Donaldson-Evans, a colleague and chair of the Romance Languages Department. “He was vitally interested not only in the major European literatures and civilizations in which he received his training but also in a wide range of interdisciplinary enterprises including the fine arts and film studies.”

He is survived by his wife, Dr. Olga Matich, professor of Russian literature and culture at UC Berkeley; his mother, Gladys Bernheimer and his sister, Cecilia Bernheimer.

The Department of Romance Languages has established an essay prize in his name, and will announce plans for a memorial service at a future date.

Dr. Carroll, Dean of the Wharton School 1972-83

Dr. Donald C. Carroll, dean of the Wharton School from 1972 to 1983, died on February 24 after a long illness. He was 67.

Dr. Carroll was the ninth dean of the Wharton School, and at the time of his selection was the first dean to have come from outside the School. Taking office in time for the implementation of the One University plan—which included transferring economics, political science and sociology to create SAS in 1975—Dr. Carroll led Wharton during changes both physical and programmatic.

Conscious emphasis was given to interdisciplinary programs and inter-school degrees (the master’s degree in Management & Technology was a notable one); international outreach (the Wharton/SEAS agreement with Shanghai Jiao Tong broke new ground in 1980); and executive education (where the Wharton Executive MBA program took the lead).

Major physical changes also took place during the Carroll years: The nation’s oldest school of business spent its 100th anniversary year in temporary quarters at Blockley Hall (renamed Centennial Hall for the duration) while the venerable Dietrich Hall was reconstructed and a new wing added to create the present Steinberg Hall-Dietrich Hall. The planning of the Steinberg Conference Center was also initiated during Dr. Carroll’s tenure.

Donald Cary Carroll was born November 5, 1930, in Chapel Hill, N.C., where his father was for many years dean of the school of business. He attended the Westtown School near Philadelphia and served in the U.S. Marines before taking his B.S. in mathematics at North Carolina in 1954. After additional Marine Corps duty, and service as a consultant to Westinghouse Electric and systems design consultant to Pittsburgh Plate Glass, he earned his master’s and Ph.D. in management from MIT.

Dr. Carroll joined the faculty of MIT’s Sloan School on completing his doctorate 1965. There he headed the Management Information Systems Group and the Operations Management Group, worked with the time-sharing computer development known as Project MAC, and was principal investigator on the Boeing MIT Research Project.

By the time he was chosen to head the Wharton School, Dr. Carroll had become widely known as a lecturer in the U.S. and abroad, and as the author of numerous technical publications.

A Sloan Fellow, Ford Fellow, and member of Phi Beta Kappa and many other honorary societies, Dr. Carroll was also the first to hold the Wharton School’s Reliance Professorship, established in 1979 to endow the deanship.

He is survived by his wife, Carol Gassett Carroll, former director of the Executive Education Program; by children Curtis and Leah Carroll and Debi Gassett Jabkowski; a sister, Eleanor Roberts and brother, Elliott Carroll; and three grandchildren.

A memorial service is to be held on campus later this spring, and the family ask that any memorial contributions in his name be made to the Wharton School.

ALMANAC March 3/10, 1998
Q1: What is the Family and Medical Leave Act?
A1: The Family and Medical Leave Act (“FMLA”) is a federal law that became effective on August 5, 1993. Implementing regulations were issued in March of 1995. The FMLA provides up to twelve (12) weeks of unpaid leave in a twelve (12) month period for an eligible employee to care for a newborn, adopted or newly placed foster child, or to attend to his/her own or a family member’s serious health condition. In addition, the FMLA permits employees to maintain their medical benefits while on such leave. FMLA can be taken continuously or in smaller amounts, i.e., intermittently, depending on the reason for the leave.

Q2: When did the University Policy take effect?
A2: In compliance with federal law in 1993, the University established Human Resource Policy 631, Family Medical Leave. Effective February 1, 1998, the University restated its Family and Medical Leave policy. The restatement of the policy includes the following practices that the University has been following in administering the policy:

- Inclusion of faculty and unionized staff members as eligible employees.
- Use of the “rolling backward” method for determining the 12-month period for purposes of the eligibility for a Family and Medical Leave.
- Expansion of the benefit beyond the requirements of the federal law to allow the use of Family and Medical Leave time for a same sex domestic partner consistent with the University’s definition of a same sex domestic partnership.

Q3: Who is eligible for Family and Medical Leave (FML)?
A3: Eligible employees are those who have been employed by the University for at least twelve (12) months and have worked for at least 1,250 hours during the 12-month period immediately preceding the start of the leave. Additionally, the employee must work at a University location with 50 or more employees within 75 miles of that worksite.

Q4: Who is an employee covered by this policy?
A4: An employee is a faculty or staff member employed by the University on a full-time, part-time or temporary basis.

Q5: Are temporary employees eligible for this leave?
A5: Yes. However, employees that are employed by the University on a temporary basis must meet the eligibility requirements.

Q6: Are staff members in collective bargaining units covered by this policy?
A6: Yes, although specific provisions of this policy may be superseded by an applicable collective bargaining agreement.

Q7: Will I be paid during FML?
A7: A leave under the Family and Medical Leave Policy may be paid or unpaid depending on 1) the reason for the leave and 2) the sick leave and paid time off the staff member has available. When an employee takes FML because of the employee’s own serious medical condition, the employee must substitute any unused paid time off, sick leave or short term disability leave for any otherwise unpaid FML.

Q8: Do I have the option not to use my paid time off towards my FML?
A8: No. The University will designate an employee’s use of paid leave as FML based on the information provided by the employee. Paid leave that is substituted for unpaid leave will be counted toward the 12 weeks of FML.

Q9: How is “serious health condition” defined?
A9: A serious health condition is an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves either:

1) inpatient care in a hospital, hospice or residential medical care facility, or
2) continuing treatment by a health care provider.

Q10: What is meant by “continuing treatment by a health care provider” as a qualification for use of FML?
A10: Examples of continuous treatment are: prenatal visits, chemotherapy, and dialysis visits.

Q11: For which of my family members may I take FML?
A11: FML may be taken for the employee’s child, spouse or same sex domestic partner or parent. For purposes of this policy, a parent means the biological parent of an employee or an individual who stands or stood in the place of a parent to an employee when the employee was a child. A child means a biological, adopted, or foster child, a stepchild, a legal ward, or a child of a person standing in the place of a parent, who is under 18 years of age or 18 years of age or older and incapable of self-care because of a mental or physical disability. A same sex domestic partnership must be consistent with the University’s definition of a same sex domestic partnership.

Q12: How are my benefits affected while I am on a FML?
A12: During any FML, the University will maintain the employee’s medical, dental, life and disability insurance coverage on the same conditions that coverage would have been provided if the employee had been continuously employed during the entire leave period. The University and the employee will each continue to pay their portion of the benefit costs. In some instances, the University may recover premiums it paid to maintain health coverage for an employee who fails to return to work from FML on a prorated basis.

Q13: What type of notice am I expected to provide to the University if I need to take FML?
A13: Employees seeking FML are required to provide their supervisors and the University’s Division of Human Resources at least 30 days prior written notice of the proposed leave. Where advance notice is not possible, such as in the event of a medical emergency, notice should be given as soon as practicable. In practice “as practicable” means at least verbal notification within two business days after the employee becomes aware of the need for leave unless it is not feasible. Failure to give advance notice where foreseeable may delay or postpone the commencement of the leave. Please contact the Division of Human Resources or see our web site http://www.upenn.edu/hr for the applicable forms.

Q14: What kind of medical documentation will be required when I request a leave?
A14: Similar to a request for short term disability, if FML is based on a serious health condition, whether it involves the employee or a family member (parent, spouse, domestic partner or child), medical certification from a health care provider will be required. Failure to provide such certification may result in a delay or denial of the employee’s leave. Where the University requires an employee to provide a medical certification, that certification must be provided within twenty (20) calendar days of the University’s request.

Q15: Do I have to provide any medical documentation when I return to work?
A15: When returning to work from a leave taken because of the employee’s own serious health condition, the employee will be required to provide medical certification that the employee is fit to return to work. Additionally, in certain instances an employee may be required to undergo a return to work physical. Please contact your supervisor or the Division of Human Resources/Benefits for available medical certifications forms.

Q16: Is there any other medical documentation that the University may require?
A16: Employees should be aware that the University may, under certain circumstances, require recertification of a medical condition or may request a second opinion regarding the medical condition. Additionally, the University may request an independent medical examination where there is a question regarding the documentation provided by the employee. This examination will be paid for by the University.

Q17: Does my department have to hold my job open while I am on FML?
A17: Generally, when employees return from a FML they will be reinstated to the same or an equivalent position, with equivalent pay, benefits, and other terms and conditions of employment.

Q18: What happens if I do not return to work after my FML?
A18: An employee’s failure to return to work may result in termination of employment. As a result it is important that you keep your department informed if there is a need to extend your leave beyond the time allowed by the Family and Medical Leave Policy. In some cases, your department, although not required to, may grant an additional unpaid leave of absence.

Q19: What 12-month period is used to determine how much FML I can take?

A19: When determining how much FML an employee may take, the University measures backwards from the date an employee uses any FML. Each time an employee takes FML the remaining leave entitlement equals the balance of the 12 weeks that has not been used during the immediately preceding 12 months.

Q20: If both my spouse and I work for the University are we both eligible for FML when we adopt a child?

A20: Yes. When both spouses or same sex domestic partners are employed by the University, they are each entitled to 12 weeks of FMLA leave for the birth and care of their newborn child, or for the care and placement with them of a child for adoption or foster care.

Q21: Does FML have to be taken in one continuous period, even if the leave is for a serious health condition?

A21: No. Depending on the needs of the employee and the recommendation of the health care provider, the leave may be taken on a continuous, intermittent or reduced schedule basis.

Q22: What is a “reduced schedule” leave?

A22: Where medically necessary, in certain circumstances, an employee may be permitted to work a reduced work week to care for their own or their family member’s serious health condition.

Q23: What is an “intermittent leave”?

A23: Intermittent leave is leave taken in separate blocks of time for a single qualifying event. For example, employees that are receiving chemotherapy treatments may require intermittent leave to allow for their therapy over a period of time. In that case the employee may need leave to receive the therapy but will then return to his/her regular schedule upon returning to work.

Q24: Are there any restrictions on taking FML for the birth or adoption or foster care of a child?

A24: Generally FML for the birth or adoption or foster care of a child is to be taken as a continuous leave. Use of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced schedule will be allowed only with the University’s prior written approval.

Q25: Where can I get additional information regarding the Family Medical Leave Policy or other leave policies at the University?

A25: Additional information regarding the University’s Family Medical Leave Policy is available on the Human Resources web page http://www.upenn.edu/hr. You may also e-mail Human Resources at askhr@pobox.upenn.edu or contact the Division of Human Resources, Department of Staff & Labor Relations, at 898-6093. In addition, a poster has been placed in the Division of Human Resources which includes further details regarding eligibility and other requirements of the law.

...On Pre-Tax Health Care and Dependent Care Accounts

When an announcement came out recently regarding the transfer to Eastern Benefit Systems (EBS) of the administration of our Pre-Tax Accounts, several questions were asked of the Human Resources. (EBS is a professional claims administrator that has been in business for over 20 years. EBS will be responsible for processing claims, issuing checks to plan participants, and answering participants’ questions about their benefits.) The most frequently asked questions and their answers are summarized below.

Q. Will my account balance change as a result of the transfer of the servicing of these accounts?
A. No. The balance in your account at the end of February, 1998 is the same starting balance that will be recorded by EBS.

Q. How often will EBS process benefit payments?
A. Benefit payments will be processed twice monthly—on the 10th and 25th of the month.

Q. Where will reimbursement checks be sent?
A. Reimbursement checks will be sent to your home address.

Q. What if I need additional claim forms?
A. Simply call EBS at 1-888-PENNFLX (1-888-736-6359 Ext. 213) and identify yourself as a Penn faculty or staff member.

Q. Is there any change in covered items under the plans as a result of this change?
A. No. Plan coverages are determined by the Internal Revenue Service and will therefore not be affected by this change. You may verify plan coverages and ask other questions on the Spending Account by calling EBS.

Tax-Time Advisory on MEAs

To All Participants in the University’s Tax-Deferred Annuity Plans:

The Internal Revenue Service sets an annual limit to the amount you can defer into your Tax-Deferred Annuity account; this limit is called the Maximum Exclusion Allowance (MEA). In order to help you with your financial planning for the year, we will be sending you a letter within the next three weeks showing your estimated MEA for 1998. The University has performed these calculations with the help of TIAA-CREF, one of the Tax-Deferred Annuity Plan providers.

If you have investments with the other plan providers, these figures are included in the calculations without identifying the other providers’ names. You will be receiving another set of calculations later in the year which will take any salary changes into account. If you have any questions on the calculations, please call TIAA-CREF’s Tax-Deferred Annuity Calculation Unit at 1-800-842-2733, Ext. 2929. To make changes in your deferrals, you will have to fill out forms that are available at the Human Resources/Benefits Office.

It is anticipated that funding for most projects will not exceed $20,000.

The Diversity Fund supports:

• Implementation of schools’ strategic plans to increase the presence of under-represented minorities (matching funds required).
• Research on diversity in higher education.
• Projects to diversify the campus environment.

Application Process

Proposals to the Diversity Fund are reviewed in the spring of each academic year. Applications are due on or before March 30th of each year.

A Lincoln Portrait, and Other Musical Evocations of an Era

March 18’s concert by the University of Pennsylvania Wind Ensemble is a celebration on many levels for Penn.

The concert marks the 20th anniversary of the Wind Ensemble, the 50-member group that has been performing steadily in the local area and which, under its new director, Ricardo Averbach, has now extended itself into a regional partnership with a counterpart at Yale. (For other ways the Ensemble will celebrate the year: see page 7).

The music of the March 18 concert focuses on Abraham Lincoln and the Civil War. One selection is Louis Moreau Gottschalk’s The Union, a piece identified by Mr. Averbach as Lincoln’s first epitaph. He said of it, citing one of Gottschalk’s biographers, Samuel Adler: “...like fine documents in our history, The Union speaks for the boisterous, tender, awkward, visionary and all but forgotten America that Lincoln bereaved.” It was written as a “battle piece” for piano in 1862 and later orchestrated. The piano soloist with the Wind Ensemble: James Primosch, chairman of the music department.

The centerpiece of the program, Aaron Copland’s Lincoln Portrait, is narrated by President Judith Rodin as the culmination of this year’s Penn Reading Project. Last summer all entering freshmen were given the Garry Wills book (left) that examined Lincoln’s 272-word Gettysburg Address word by word in its historical context, and when they arrived on campus they met in small groups to discuss the book with faculty who volunteered from many schools and disciplines. Copland’s Portrait was written in 1942, as one of a series of musical portraits of American heroes that Andre Kostelanetz commissioned of various composers. It has proved to be Copland’s most popular work in the United States, where it has enjoyed even more performances than the music from his ballet Appalachian Spring, according to Mr. Averbach.

Also on the program will be American Salute, by Morton Gould, which is based on the march known as When Johnny Comes Marching Home, and Charles Ives’s Variations on America.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. at the Annenberg Center’s Zellerbach Theater. Admission is free but tickets are required; for details please call the Annenberg Center Box Office at 898-6791.
