Welcome Back From the President

The Rhythm of Promise and Possibility

If you want to experience a Penn animated by possibility and promise, then you only need to immerse yourself in the rhythm of campus life at the beginning of any fall semester. Young men and women eagerly return to tackle their studies and follow their interests. Faculty members prepare to engage and challenge students in the pursuit of knowledge, and staff across our campus undertake the indispensable work that moves the University forward.

This is truly one of the most exciting times of the year, and I hope you are as excited as I am as we begin a new semester and inaugurate our Year of Games. Many of our students and faculty have already read Jane McGonigal's Reality is Broken: Why Games Make us Better and How They Can Change the World. Starting this month, a multi-disciplinary inquiry across all of our schools and many of our resource centers will explore the roles games play in the lives of individuals and communities.

As we experience the familiar rhythms of campus life, we welcome the newest members of our community, the Class of 2015. The most talented and diverse freshman class in Penn's history, its 2,416 members represent every state in the union and 82 countries around the world.

Among the many extraordinary scholars and leaders who will also be joining our community this fall, we are extremely fortunate to have Dr. Larry Jameson overseeing all of Penn Medicine's academic programs, research activities, and clinical services as the new executive vice president for the Health System and dean of the Perelman School of Medicine. An internationally renowned researcher in endocrinology, he brings to Penn deep experience and proven success in leading high quality academic and clinical programs.

Additionally, Ezekiel Emanuel, an eminent scholar of bioethics and health policy, has joined the faculty as our 13th Penn Integrates Knowledge Professor, with appointments in the Perelman School of Medicine and the Wharton School. He will also be the inaugural chair of the Perelman School's new Department of Medical Ethics and Health Policy.

For all the members of our community, one of the most exciting, and anticipated, events this semester is the opening of the remarkable urban oasis of Penn Park. What was once a desolate strip of asphalt, concrete, and parking lots has been converted into an environmentally sustainable park for the entire campus to enjoy. Stretching along the West Bank of the Schuylkill, the 24 acres of Penn Park are extending the familiar landscape of our campus, and adding 20 percent more green space to what is already one of America's leafiest urban campuses. Formal and informal athletic areas are framed and subdivided by beautiful canopy trees and recreation areas. Exceptional footpaths, picnic spots, playing fields, tennis courts, sunny lawns, and shady groves are designed to foster community among Penn faculty and students. Three footbridges, including one at 30th and Walnut, provide access to the site. With the city skyline as a grand backdrop, pedestrians will have access to walkways and inviting green space along the river. Penn Park, one of the most transformative projects in our history, also reaffirms our commitment to become the most environmentally sustainable urban campus in the country. This remarkable green space, perfect for recreation or relaxation, will add an entirely new dimension to the rhythm of our campus and community. Walk, bike, or run over to Penn Park and behold!

Along with Penn Park, we continue to build the most beautiful, dynamic, and sustainable campus in so many ways. Golkin Hall, a gorgeous new wing of the Law School, is nearing completion on Sansom Street. We are putting the finishing touches on a Special Collections Center in Van Pelt Library befitting Penn's magnificent and diverse holdings. The Krishna P. Singh Center for Nanotechnology, a hub for remarkable scientists and engineers, and the students they teach, mentor, and involve in their research, is rising on Penn's eastern edge, and it will soon be the first academic building—a stunningly luminescent one—that members of our community and visitors encounter on the Walnut Street gateway to campus. We will also shortly begin work on Shoemaker Green. Located in front of the Palestra, where the tennis courts were before they were moved to Penn Park, it will be a new public commons and a green gateway to Penn Park.

Penn's achievements, its dynamism and growth, the rhythm of promise and possibility on our campus, are the result of the combined efforts of faculty, students, alumni, staff, and friends who care deeply and work passionately for the University. Leading a world-class research and teaching institution is a great professional privilege. Working alongside you, the people who truly love the Red and the Blue, is not only a privilege, it is a joy, and I look forward to another successful academic year.

Penn Integrates Knowledge Professor: Ezekiel Emanuel

Ezekiel Emanuel

President Amy Gutmann and Provost Vincent Price are pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. Ezekiel J. Emanuel, a globally renowned bioethicist, as the 13th Penn Integrates Knowledge University Professor, effective September 1, 2011.

Dr. Emanuel is the Diane v.S. Levy and Robert M. Levy University Professor and serves in the newly created position of Vice Provost for Global Initiatives. His appointment is shared between the Department of Medical Ethics and Health Policy in the Perelman School of Medicine, which he chairs, and the Department of Health Care Management in the Wharton School.

Vice President for University Communications: Stephen MacCarthy

Penn President Amy Gutmann announced in late July that Stephen J. MacCarthy, vice president for external relations at the University of Arizona, became the University of Pennsylvania's vice president for university communications. He assumed his new position on August 29. Mr. MacCarthy's appointment concludes a nationwide search. He replaced Lori Doyle, who left Penn at the end of January to become senior vice president, university communications, at Drexel. Mr. MacCarthy's appointment will go before the University Trustees in November for confirmation.

Welcome Back From the Senate Chair

Participating in Shared Governance

For me, the beginning of the end of summer occurs during the last week of July, when I welcome 70 incoming freshmen to the Center for Africana Studies Summer Institute for Pre-Freshmen. It's a magical week where students study hard, form enduring friendships, and remind me how special and satisfying the teacher-student relationship is, not only for the students, but for us as well. And, so, as Chair of the Faculty Senate, I write to you in mid-August, welcoming you back to campus for the 2011-2012 academic year with heartfelt enthusiasm, despite the eminent onslaught of move-in week!

We, as members of the faculty of this great University, are privileged to pursue our passions—research and teaching—and to serve together alongside our colleagues, students, and staff. President Amy Gutmann's commitments to "integrating knowledge," and achieving "eminence through excellence," reflect the fact that, collectively, we are among the world's best at discovery, innovation, and problem-solving.

Last year, as Chair-Elect of the Faculty Senate, I discovered the special rewards that flow from participating in shared governance. This, admittedly, is not usually something that brings us to the Academy; nonetheless, it is essential if we want a voice in the development and implementation of University policy. The Faculty Senate also functions as the voice of the moral conscience of our University. We accomplish this not only through our teaching and research, but also through our service on committees and by speaking in public forums.

The Faculty Senate includes all standing faculty and clinician-educators in all 12 of Penn's schools and fulfills its obligation to shared governance through the Senate Executive Committee (SEC), an elected body, the Senate Tri-Chairs (Chair-Elect Susan Margulies, myself, and Past-Chair Robert Hornik), several Senate committees, and through faculty representation on University Council committees. These groups are in regular conversation with the President and Provost, deans, administrators, and representatives of many constituency groups on campus, working to create policies for consideration by the Trustees, and to keep the larger campus community well informed.

Last year, in response to a disappointing Progress Report on Minority Equity, the Faculty Senate took up the issue of faculty diversity and how best to achieve it; I believe that we, as faculty, were essential catalysts for the newly-released Penn's Action Plan for Faculty Diversity and Excellence. One of our many tasks this year will be to monitor the rollout and implementation of the plan, and to provide critical feedback. This will be my top priority during the coming year, as I believe that a more diverse faculty is crucial to our goals of integrating knowledge and achieving eminence through excellence.

I look forward to a very busy and exciting year. To those of you who have so willingly committed to serve in various capacities, my colleagues and I are grateful, and we thank you for your service. To those of you who are not currently serving, we hope that you will consider doing so in the future. To all members of the faculty, if there are issues of concern to you, please do not hesitate to bring them forward, either through your constituency representative, or directly with myself or with either the past-chair or chair-elect.

Chairing the Faculty Senate is a great privilege, and I am sincerely grateful to you, my faculty colleagues, for putting your faith in me. I also owe a special debt of gratitude to Past-Chair Larry Gladney, for encouraging me to accept this role, and for believing that I could, indeed, fulfill it. I am also extremely pleased to have the wisdom of Past-Chair Robert Hornik, and the incredible insight and enthusiasm of Chair-Elect Susan Margulies. And last, but certainly not least, I continue to be awed and amazed by Sue White, the Executive Assistant to the Senate. Believe me when I say we could not do this without her. Please contact me (ccharles@sas.upenn.edu), or Sue White (senate@pobox.upenn.edu, (215) 898-6943) with issues or questions.

Penn's Commonwealth Appropriation for FY 2011-2012

On June 30, 2011 the Pennsylvania House of Representatives (vote of 178-21) and Senate (49-0) approved Penn's non-preferred Commonwealth appropriation bill (HB 1729) for FY 2011-2012. Governor Tom Corbett subsequently signed into law Act 12A of 2011. The bill provides a total of $28,137,000 in funding to the School of Veterinary Medicine for FY 2011-2012. This funding level represents a 6.2 percent decrease below last year's amount. Administrative oversight for the appropriation has been transferred from the Department of Education to the Department of Agriculture.

Appropriations for other sectors of higher education were significantly reduced. Governor Corbett recommended reductions of 50 percent to The Pennsylvania State System of Higher Education and the four state-related institutions—Penn State, Pitt, Temple and Lincoln. The legislature restored much of their funding, but their final appropriations were reduced by almost 20 percent.

The General Assembly passed and the Governor also approved House Bill 1485, the FY 2011-2012 General Fund budget for the Commonwealth. HB 1485 includes approximately $3.2 million in funding in the Department of Public Welfare for Penn's physician practice plan, money used to support Penn's Perelman School of Medicine, Cardiovascular Studies and the Dental Clinics operated by the Dental School. While Governor Corbett initially proposed the complete elimination of this funding, the final appropriation represents a 50 percent cut in funds to this line item.

The final budget agreement retained full funding for the Tobacco Settlement health research program (CURE). The total amount available for CURE in FY 2011-2012 is $59.9 million, down slightly from $62.6 million in FY 2010-2011. Based on the applicable formula, Penn has historically received between $8 to $10 million per year in funds from this pool. The Governor had proposed moving the CURE program into the General Fund, but this change was rejected by the Legislature and all Tobacco Settlement programs will remain part of a separate fund.

The final "spend" in the approved Commonwealth budget is approximately four percent below last year's level, with significant cuts to education, welfare and economic development programs. The budget also cut funding to the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Centers (SBDCs), a network of college and university based business assistance centers, including the Wharton SBDC. In accordance with Governor Corbett's proposal, the final budget aggregates funding for the SBDCs, along with funding for the Industrial Resource Centers, Local Development Districts, and Industrial Development Corporations, into a new single line item called the Partnerships for Regional Economic Performance. The total funding for this program is $11.9 million, a 24 percent reduction for these programs.

Finally, the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA) grant program providing financial aid to low-income Pennsylvania residents was cut by 1.9 percent to a total of $380.9 million. With a $50 million supplement to the program provided by PHEAA itself, however, the total funding for grants will actually rise to $430.9 million. This supplemental funding will increase the maximum PHEAA grant award available for eligible students for the coming academic year to $4,200, up from last year's $3,500, an increase of $700.

13th PIK Professor: Dr. Emanuel

dously fortunate to have attracted to our faculty one of the most insightful and well-respected bioethicists of our time," said President Gutmann. "Zeke Emanuel is an eminent scholar, a passionate teacher, a collaborative leader, and a tireless public servant. He has time and again demonstrated the vital importance of putting the broadest and deepest understandings to work in service of others. I am delighted that he will join the ranks of our esteemed Penn Integrates Knowledge University Professors."

Dr. Emanuel is one of the world's leading scholars of bioethics and health care. The founding chair of the department of bioethics at The Clinical Center of the National Institutes of Health since 1997, he served from February 2009 to January 2011 as special advisor for health policy to the director of the White House Office of Management and Budget.

He is an author or editor of nine books, including the landmark study The Ends of Human Life (Harvard University Press, 1991), and hundreds of articles and essays, across such topics as health care reform, the ethics of clinical research, end-of-life care, managed care, and the physician-patient relationship. He has published in such leading medical journals as The New England Journal of Medicine, The Lancet, and JAMA, as well as in The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Atlantic, The New Republic, and many other publications.

He has been elected to the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences; served on President Clinton's Task Force on National Health Care Reform, the National Bioethics Advisory Commission, and the bioethics panel of the Pan American Health Organization; received such awards as the AMA-Burroughs Wellcome Leadership Award, the Public Service Award from the American Society of Clinical Oncology, and the John Mendelsohn Award from the MD Anderson Cancer Center; and been a visiting professor at Stanford, Johns Hopkins, UCLA, and the University of Pittsburgh.

"I am delighted to welcome Zeke Emanuel as Vice Provost for Global Initiatives," said Provost Price. "The extraordinary range of experience and expertise that he brings to this new role will play a critical part in shaping our global activities in the years ahead. And his leadership in interdisciplinary knowledge, ethical inquiry, and global engagement—three of our most important values—will prove a great asset to the entire Penn community."

Dr. Emanuel earned an MD (1988) and a PhD in political philosophy (1989) from Harvard University, an MSci in biochemistry from Oxford University (1981), and a BA in chemistry from Amherst College (1979). Before joining the NIH in 1997, he was associate professor of social medicine at the Harvard Medical School, where he taught since 1992.

The Penn Integrates Knowledge program was launched by President Gutmann in 2005 as a University-wide initiative to recruit exceptional faculty members whose research and teaching exemplify the integration of knowledge across disciplines and who are jointly appointed between two Schools at Penn.

The Diane v.S. Levy and Robert M. Levy University Professorship is the generous gift of Penn Trustee Robert M. Levy, WG'74, and his wife Diane v.S. Levy. Mr. Levy is partner, chairman and chief investment officer of Harris Associates LP, an investment management firm. Mr. Levy is chair of Penn's Investment Committee, co-chair of Making History: The Campaign for Penn, chair of Innovation and Leadership: The Campaign for Wharton, and vice chairman of the Wharton Board of Overseers. Mrs. Levy is a member of the Board of Overseers at the University of Pennsylvania's Museum of Archeology and Anthropology.

Correction

In the July 12 issue's Honors & Other Things column, Dr. David Stern was listed as the Ruth Meltzer Professor, his former title. He is now the Moritz and Josephine Berg Professor in Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations. We regret the error. —Eds.

Vice President for University Communications

As vice president, Mr. MacCarthy has overall responsibility for communicating Penn's goals and achievements to internal and external audiences in Philadelphia, across the country, and around the world.

"Steve is a strategic communications leader who brings a wealth of experience to the position," President Gutmann said. "He has a deep and extensive understanding of higher education, an appreciation of Penn's aspirations and needs, and a fresh perspective on the use of both traditional and new communications methods and media. He will be a wonderful addition to our leadership team, and I look forward to working closely with him in the months and years ahead."

Prior to joining the University of Arizona in 2007, Mr. MacCarthy was vice president for university relations at Pennsylvania State University for 11 years. Prior to that, he was at the California State University system where he was director of public affairs and university relations for the last seven of his nine years there.

Mr. MacCarthy earned a bachelor's degree from San Diego State University in 1977. He began his career as a comedy writer in Hollywood after winning a national writing contest sponsored by 20th Century Fox. He then moved from television to advertising then served as a press secretary and speechwriter before moving into higher education.

Mrs. Perelman, Philanthropist

Philanthropist Ruth Perelman passed away July 31 from pneumonia at the age of 90.

"Philadelphia has lost a most beloved and consummately gracious civic leader with the passing of Ruth Perelman," said Penn President Amy Gutmann. "In our city's centuries-long history, Mrs. Perelman and her husband, Raymond, have made a mark unlike any other. We at the University of Pennsylvania—home of the Raymond and Ruth Perelman School of Medicine—have benefitted invaluably from her tireless generosity and that of Raymond and their family. Ruth's generous spirit and strong commitment to education, medicine and culture in Philadelphia will be remembered for countless generations to come."

In May, Mr. and Mrs. Perelman made an historic gift creating a permanent endowment for the School of Medicine, which was renamed the Raymond and Ruth Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. They were the driving force for the patient-centered experience in the state-of-the-art Ruth and Raymond Perelman Center for Advanced Medicine, which opened in 2008. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Perelman established the first endowed professorship devoted to an active, full-time clinician in 2005. They also hosted events on Penn Medicine's behalf in Palm Beach.

"The Penn family and the City of Philadelphia have lost a gracious and wonderful benefactor," said Dr. Arthur H. Rubenstein, former dean of the Perelman School of Medicine. "It has been a joy to know and work with Ruth over these many years, and I consider myself privileged to have been able to call her a friend. Her exceptional legacy of generosity will never be forgotten."

Current Perelman School of Medicine Dean J. Larry Jameson, said, "Their extraordinary gift to the Perelman School of Medicine will make us a leader in improving health around the world, and I hope our efforts will be a fitting honor to Ruth's memory."

In addition to their on-going interest in health care, the Perelmans have made path-breaking gifts to the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Kimmel Center, the Perelman Jewish Day School and many other Jewish cultural and welfare organizations.

A native of New Haven, Connecticut, Mrs. Perelman attended the Women's College of the University of North Carolina.

Mrs. Perelman is survived by her husband and Penn Medicine trustee, Raymond, W'40; sons, Jeffrey, W'71, WG'73; Ronald, W'64, WG'66; sister, Phyllis Horton; eight grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Gifts in her honor may be made online, <http://alumni.med.upenn.edu/ruthperelmanmemorial.php>, or by check, made out to the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania and noting "Ruth Perelman" on the memo line. Send to: Penn Medicine Development and Alumni Relations, 3535 Market Street, Suite 750, Philadelphia, PA 19104-3309.

Mr. Wolfman, Law

Bernard Wolfman, former dean of the Penn Law School, died August 20. He was 87.

A renowned scholar of tax law and a leading expert on professional responsibility and ethics for lawyers, Mr. Wolfman earned his AB in political science in 1946 and JD in 1948 from Penn. He practiced law for 15 years at the Philadelphia firm of Wolf, Block, Schorr & Solis-Cohen before beginning a career in legal academia.

In 1963, after serving for three years as an adjunct professor while he was still in private practice, Mr. Wolfman joined the Penn Law faculty full-time as the Kenneth W. Gemmill Professor of Tax Law and Tax Policy. He remained at the Law School through 1975, including serving as dean from 1970 to 1975. Following his deanship, he spent a year at the Center for Advanced Study at Stanford University before joining the Harvard faculty in 1976 as the Fessenden Professor of Law.

As dean of Penn Law, Mr. Wolfman oversaw the growth of the Penn Law faculty, as well as major curricular changes. During his tenure, clinical courses, which were beginning to emerge in American legal education, were added to Penn Law's curriculum, and there was increased emphasis on student writing.

Mr. Wolfman wrote and co-wrote dozens of articles and numerous books, including Dissent Without Opinion: The Behavior of Justice William O. Douglas in Federal Tax Cases; Federal Income Taxation of Corporate Enterprise; Ethical Problems in Federal Tax Practice, and Standards of Tax Practice.

Throughout his years in academia, Mr. Wolfman remained active as a practitioner, serving as an expert for both private and non-profit clients. In 2003, he served as senior adviser to the assistant attorney general for the Tax Division, U.S. Department of Justice. He was a consultant on tax policy with the U.S. Treasury Department from 1963 to 1968 and again from 1977 to 1980. From 1974-1994, he served as a consultant to the American Law Institute's Federal Income Tax Project, where he made recommendations for structural legislative change. He also served as special consultant to Iran/Contra Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh from 1987 to 1989.

Mr. Wolfman served on many councils of the American Bar Association, including the section on Individual Rights and Responsibilities. He was also president of the Federal Tax Institute of New England and a fellow of the American Bar Foundation and the American College of Tax Counsel.

Mr. Wolfman is survived by his wife, Toni Wolfman; children, Jonathan, Brian, Dina Wolfman Baker, Jeffrey Braemer and David Braemer; sister, Lila Booth; 10 grandchildren; and nieces, nephews and cousins.

Contributions may be made to the Greater Boston Legal Services or to Penn Law: Andy Maynard, Gift Processor; University of Pennsylvania Law School, 3400 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, PA 19104; with checks made out to the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania and a note to indicate that the gift is for the Wolfman fund.

Penn Alum & Penn Relays: Philadelphia Sports Hall of Fame

Former Penn track member James Edwin "Ted" Meredith, C'16, and The Penn Relays will be a part of the 8th Inductee Class of the Philadelphia Sports Hall of Fame in November.

The Penn Relays will become the first Philly sports institution to join the Hall when the class is formally inducted.

Mr. Meredith earned his fame when he broke the interscholastic 440-yard record twice. At the age of 19, he won the 800-meter competition at the Stockholm Olympics in 1912.

HUP: Top Hospital

For the fourth consecutive year, the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania (HUP) has been ranked among the top 10 hospitals in the nation by U.S. News & World Report. In total, HUP medical specialties ranked in the top 20 across 15 of the 16 areas evaluated. All three Penn Medicine hospitals were among the top 10 hospitals in Philadelphia with HUP ranked #1.

Sr. Buley: Penn-made President

Sister Paula Marie Buley, GrEd'96, was named president of Rivier College in Nashua, New Hampshire. She started August 1. For additional Penn-made presidents, see www.upenn.edu/almanac/pennpres.html

Dr. Caan: Best Reviewer

Dr. Ram Caan, professor in the School of Social Policy & Practice was chosen as Best Reviewer for 2011 by the Journal of Social Work Education. The criteria for this award include exceptional service in responsiveness to requests for review, timeliness in submitting completed reviews and quality of written reviews. Dr. Caan will receive the award in October.

Dr. Kohli: Rita Allen Foundation

Dr. Rahul M. Kohli, assistant professor of medicine and biochemistry & biophysics in the Perelman School of Medicine, has received a $500,000 grant from the Rita Allen Foundation. He will receive $100,000 per year for five years as a 2011 Rita Allen Foundation Scholar. Dr. Kohli's lab is exploring the idea that DNA cytosine modifying enzymes can be used to introduce an added layer of complexity by muffling, amplifying or even rewriting parts of the genome. Understanding the dynamic genome has implications for advances in infectious diseases, stem cell biology and oncology, among other fields. The Rita Allen Foundation's mission includes supporting "transformative ideas in their earliest stages to leverage their growth and promote breakthrough solutions to significant problems."

Dr. Lewis: Funding for Hypertension

Lisa Lewis

Dr. Lisa Lewis, assistant professor of nursing, has received funding from the Edna G. Kynett Memorial Foundation, Inc for her proposal "Spiritual Vignettes to Increase Medication Adherence among Hypertensive Black Church Members." The primary purpose of the Edna G. Kynett Memorial Foundation is the study, prevention, early diagnosis and alleviation of diseases of the cardiovascular system.

Dr. McLellan: Livengrin Honor

Dr. Tom McLellan, professor in the department of psychiatry and director of the Penn Center for Substance Abuse Solutions in the Perelman School of Medicine, will receive the S.F. Hansell Award for Excellence in Addiction Treatment from the Livengrin Foundation later this month. Livengrin is a nonprofit that provides treatment and recovery from substance abuse in the Philadelphia region.

Ms. Rosqueta: Brava! Award

Ms. Katherina Rosqueta, the founding executive director of the Center for High Impact Philanthropy, housed at the School of Social Policy & Practice, is a recipient of a 2011 Philadelphia SmartCEO magazine Brava! Women Business Achievement Award. The Brava! Awards honor the contributions of female CEOs, presidents, business owners and executive directors in the Philadelphia area who have exhibited dedication to overseeing successful businesses and also giving back to the community through philanthropic endeavors. Honorees were profiled in the July issue of Philadelphia SmartCEO magazine.

Dr. Rozmiarek: ICLAS Secretary

Dr. Harry Rozmiarek, professor emeritus of laboratory animal medicine at the School of Veterinary Medicine, was elected Secretary-General of the International Council for Laboratory Animal Science (ICLAS). He will serve a four-year term (2011-2015). ICLAS is an international scientific organization advancing human and animal health by promoting the ethical care and use of laboratory animals in research worldwide.

Dr. Seider: Van Antwerpen Award

Dr. Warren D. Seider, professor in the department of chemical and biomolecular engineering in the School of Engineering and Applied Science, is the 2011 recipient of the F.J. and Dorothy Van Antwerpen Award for Service to the Institute presented by the American Institute of Chemical Engineers (AIChE). He is recognized for contributions in phase and chemical equilibria, azeotropic distillation, semi-continuous operations, chemical reaction systems, heat and power integration, Czochralski crystallization, nonlinear control, safety and risk analysis and applied numerical methods.

Honors for GRASP Lab

Research conducted by the General Robotics, Automation, Sensing and Perception (GRASP) Lab was recognized in the categories of "Best Conference Paper," "Best Manipulation Paper," "Best Video" and First place in the Modular Robotics Challenge at the 2011 International Conference on Robotics and Automation (ICRA) held in Shanghai, China. The GRASP lab integrates computer science, electrical engineering and mechanical engineering in a collaborative environment that fosters interactions between students, research staff and faculty. Details on these honors are on SEAS website, www.seas.upenn.edu/media/news/icra-11.php

Pre-Tax Expense Accounts: Use It or Lose It

Still have money in your Health Care or Dependent Care Pre-Tax Expense Account? Remember to "use it or lose it."

You have until September 15 to incur eligible expenses for the 2010–2011 plan year, and all claims must be submitted by September 30. If you don't use the full balance in your account each plan year, you lose that unused money.

For more details on the Pre-Tax Expense Accounts, including listings of eligible expenses and instructions on how to file a claim, visit the Human Resources website at www.hr.upenn.edu/Benefits/PreTax/Default.aspx or call the Penn Benefits Center at 1-888-PENNBEN (1-888-736-6236), Monday through Friday, 8 a.m.–6 p.m.

Thanks to Volunteers

Dear Penn Community,

Thank you very much for your generosity during the Annual School Supplies Drive. Your generosity allowed us to provide school supplies for at least 50 or more students in the following areas:

- Wilson Elementary School
- Leas Elementary School
- Comegy Elementary School
- We also provided supplies to:
 - St. Barnabas Mission for Homeless Families
 - Penn WorkPlace Mentoring Program
 - New Faith Nondenominational House of Prayer

And, at least ten individual deserving families referred to Penn VIPS for much needed school supplies.

Thank you for your spirit of volunteerism. Many benefit from your willingness to share. We receive many expressions of gratitude from community members and agencies we have partnered with.

—Isabel Mapp, Associate Director
Netter Center for Community Partnerships,
Office of Government and Community Affairs

Note: Opportunities to volunteer will be published in a future issue.

Employee Resource Fair: An Opportunity to Participate

Dear University of Penn Departments,

The Penn Professional Staff Assembly (PPSA) and the Penn Weekly-Paid Professional Staff Assembly (WPPSA), in partnership with the offices of the Executive Vice President and the Department of Human Resources, are co-sponsoring an Employee Resource Fair on Tuesday, October 11, from noon–2 p.m. in Bodek Lounge, Houston Hall. The purpose of the fair is to provide information to employees regarding the vast and varied campus resources and services available to them. The Business Services Commuter Fair will be joining us again this year, providing employees with an opportunity to learn about options to help make commuting to Penn more affordable and sustainable. The fair will be open to the entire Penn community.

We are excited to offer you an opportunity to participate in the Employee Resource Fair 2011. We would welcome representation from your area and encourage you to showcase your services.

If you would like to participate, pre-registration is required, and we ask that two representatives from your office staff a table. Typically, participants bring both informational and promotional materials on their services (brochures, giveaways, etc). Please feel free to advertise your participation in the Resource Fair through your email lists and newsletters. Set-up and breakdown will take place from 11 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 2:30 p.m.

In order to secure your reservation, complete the online registration by September 30, 2011 at www.destinationpenn.com. From this page, select 'open registrations' then 'Employee Resource Fair Vendor Registration.'

Thank you for your thoughtful consideration to participate in the Employee Resource Fair 2011. For all inquiries, please contact ppsa@exchange.upenn.edu.

Offices of Information Systems & Computing and Audit, Compliance & Privacy.

Top 10's on Security and Privacy

Are you feeling overwhelmed by the risks you hear about when it comes to safe and secure computing? You're not alone. For every risk, there seems to be an endless stream of advice. So let's keep it simple:

On Facebook: Visit the Privacy website to find a Top 10 list and video on how to protect yourself when using Facebook. Did you know that you can create separate lists of friends on Facebook to control who can see what? And that you can limit who can tag you in photos or "check you in" to places? Facebook's greatest feature—the ability to connect you with many people in an instant—is also the source of its greatest peril. Make sure to check this list often, as Facebook terms and services are known to change regularly!

Safe Computing: You know that computer breaches happen every day. But did you know that most can be prevented by following the most basic precautions? Our Top 10 Tips for Faculty and Top 10 Tips for Staff will get you quickly through the most critical topics: firewalls, passwords, wireless, phishing, attachments and more. More Email Storage At No Additional Cost

Whether you're an Exchange or Zimbra user, as of July 1, Information Systems & Computing increased your base email quota from 500 MB to 1 GB at no additional cost to you. The increase to the base quota allows you to receive and keep more email, and keep it readily accessible rather than archived offline—an especially useful feature to those who receive lots of attachments. In addition, the increased storage provides freedom to experiment with some of the built-in collaboration features of Zimbra, including document editing and file sharing, with more confidence there will be enough storage available for critical email.

If you need additional storage beyond 1 GB, it's possible to add an additional 3 GB for both Exchange and Zimbra users at a charge of $0.50 per extra 250 MB per month. This is a lower charge rate than the FY2011 charge of $1.25 per extra 250 MB per month made possible through economies of scale resulting from consolidation onto a new technology.

Quotas higher than 4 GB are also available via special arrangements.

Best practices suggest people look carefully at what and how long they actually retain email. Since email is not generally considered a secure medium and should not be used for highly sensitive information, ISC offers the Penn community SecureShare for secure file exchange and SecureSpace for secure collaboration. SecureShare encrypts files and ensures they reach only intended recipients. SecureSpace enables collaboration with colleagues at Penn and other institutions.

Remember 9/11 with Penn Museum

Penn Museum is offering several opportunities to reflect on the ten year anniversary of September 11, 2001. Excavating Ground Zero: Fragments from 9/11 is a special display at the Penn Museum on view through November 6. In conjunction with The National September 11 Memorial Museum, the exhibit displays objects excavated from Ground Zero by archaeologists and anthropologists in the months and years following the attacks, including eyeglasses, visitor passes and a computer keyboard.

Visitors may choose to post their own memories of that morning, or participate in an afternoon remembrance on September 11.

In addition, Dr. David Brownlee, Shapiro-Weitzenhoffer Professor of History of Art at Penn, will deliver a lecture: Making a Monument: The Rise and Fall of the World Trade Center at 1 p.m. At 3 p.m., the Museum will host a free performance of "Cato: A Tragedy" by Joseph Addison featuring Reg E. Cathey. The performance will feature a theatrical reading of "Cato" as a catalyst for a town-hall style discussion about the overall impact of 9/11. Next month, on October 12 at 6 p.m., the Museum will present, From the Sacred to the Historical: Ten Years After September 11, 2001. Admission to museum will be pay-what-you-want on September 11. Penn Park with Center City skyline to the east.

Penn Park is 24 acres of continuous open space that includes athletic and recreational facilities owned and operated by the University of Pennsylvania. This new sustainable park, bordered on the north by Walnut Street, the east by Amtrak's Northeast Corridor rail line, the west by SEPTA's Regional rail line, and to the south by South Street, is connected to 10 acres of pre-existing Penn athletic facilities to its south known as the River Fields Complex.

Proceeding south from Walnut Street, the Park contains Ace Adams Field and Dunning-Cohen Champions' Field, which will be used for practice and club/intramural competition; a 470-seat multipurpose stadium that is also an NCAA regulation women's softball field; and 12 tennis courts, with 200 seat viewing stands. Between these facilities are pathways, elevated bridge connections and open space for passive recreation; more than 500 trees adorn the landscaped pathways for walking and jogging. The Park is served by a 210-car surface parking lot bordering the north boundary along lower Walnut Street; visitor parking fee $8/day. The Penn Bus will stop there M-F, 8 a.m.-6 p.m. In addition, a security station and restrooms reside in the stadium.

Penn Park integrates athletic venues and park-like spaces. It has two acres of open spaces not specified for athletic use. They are: Highline Green, a grassy area along the elevated rail line; South Lawn, an open space between Ace Adams Field and the multipurpose stadium; the Picnic Grove—an open space nestled between the Dunning-Cohen Champions' Field, the multipurpose stadium and Highline Green, and the South Green, a grass recreation field south of the Hamlin Tennis Center. It is easily accessed from the west by the Paley Bridge. The multipurpose stadium, in the heart of the complex, is designed for live music concerts and other types of gatherings.

Penn Park is open to the public. Non-affiliated parties can enjoy the multiple open spaces for recreation, and use the area as a pedestrian connection for walking, jogging and biking.

The Park hours of operation are from 6 a.m. to midnight. Individual facilities within the Park will be scheduled through Penn's Department of Recreation and Intramural Athletics.

Penn Park is a year-round facility. A seasonal air structure will be inflated over the Dunning-Cohen Champions' Field to allow indoor athletic activities and practices during the winter months.
